Yahya Bows Out; Army Plays Key Role

Bhutto Takes Reins In Pakistan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan resigned today, and Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, West Pakistan's most powerful political leader, succeeded him as president and chief martial law administrator.

Yahya Khan resigned because of his army's defeat in the two-week war with India. His resignation ended 13 years of military rule in Pakistan, but the retention of martial law indicated that the army would continue to play a key role. Bhutto was sworn in shortly after he returned from the United States, where he had argued Pakistan's case against India at the United Nations and conferred with President Nixon on Saturday. U.S. Ambassador Joseph S. Farland was in the large crowd that met him at the airport in Islamabad.

Bhutto said Sunday it was premature to speak of the future of Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, the political leader of Pakistan's now independent eastern province of Bangla Desh, who is a prisoner of the Pakistani government.

He told newsmen in Rome that President Nixon, at their meeting in Washington Saturday, had reaffirmed U.S. support for the principle of Pakistan's sovereignty and unity.

"Pakistan is one single thing," Bhutto said. "The nation's unity must be safeguarded. India has forcefully occupied Pakistani territories and a lasting peace cannot be achieved if New Delhi fails to give back what it conquered with its tanks. We do not want to be involved in a war every five or ten years."

Bhutto's leftist Pakistan People's party is the largest in the National Assembly, with 82 of the 138 seats allotted to West Pakistan. Sheikh Mujib's Awami League won 167 seats, all in East Pakistan, and that gave it a majority in the assembly, but Yahya Khan canceled most of the Awami victories when he ordered his army to crush the league last March.

Yahya Khan put Mujib on trial before a military court on charges of treason; sources in Rawalpindi said the trial has ended, but there was no word of a verdict. They added that Sheikh Mujib had sought a meeting with Yahya after the two-week war started, but the president refused to see him.

After Indian forces invaded East Pakistan on Dec. 4, Yahya Khan named a minor East Pakistani political leader, Nurul Amin, prime minister with Bhutto as deputy prime minister and foreign minister.

Since the army's surrender in East Pakistan last Thursday and Yahya's proclamation of a cease-fire on Friday, there have been demonstrations throughout West Pakistan against his conduct of the war.

PPG Names New Plant Manager

JAMES M. BUTLER

James M. Butler has been appointed plant manager of PPG Industries' facility in Circleville according to an announcement by C. W. Gibbs, assistant general manager automotive finishes.

Butler joined PPG in March, 1961 at PPG's Cleveland Plant where he worked in various positions until his transfer to Circleville in November 1967 as manager of operations planning. Immediately prior to his appointment as plant manager, he served as Production Superintendent and assistant plant manager.

Butler succeeds Harold C. Frick, who retired on Dec. 1, after 47 years with PPG. A 1957 graduate of St. Edwards High School in Lakewood, Butler received his B. S. Degree from Baldwin-Wallace College in 1965.

Butler has been active in various community organizations since his transfer to Circleville in 1967. These include membership in St. Joseph's Church, the Circleville YMCA and the Circleville Chapter of the Knights of Columbus.

Butler, his wife Georgann, and their five children reside at 440 Edward Road.

Group Fights Parochial Aid

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A federal lawsuit challenging a portion of the new tax-budget bill was expected to be filed shortly after Gov. John J. Gilligan signs the measure today.

Gilligan changed the time of signing of the bill calling for both a personal and corporate income tax from 12 noon to 1:30 p.m.

The American Civil Liberties Union said it would file an immediate action in U.S. District Court to block the parochial aid aspects of the bill.

Under the bill, the state would make direct $90 per student grants to the parents of parochial school students. The idea of the provision was to get around recent court rulings that have labeled direct aid to parochial schools unconstitutional.

Bloody Tide Of Revenge Sweeps Dacca

By DENNIS NEEDL
Associated Press Writer

DACCA (AP) — The jubilation of victory has given way to savagery as Dacca's Bengalis avenge their murdered relatives and comrades in blood.

The city's Bihari community, among whom the Pakistani military regime found most of its collaborators, is the target.

The Indian troops who occupied Dacca Thursday are trying to check the killings. But they cannot stop the stab in the dark and the back street reprisals.

Some 5,000 Bangla Desh guerrillas, armed with modern automatic weapons, race through the streets in crowded trucks and jeeps, dispensing their brand of justice to suspected traitors to their new nation.

They have plenty to avenge. Two days before the Pakistani surrender, 120 local intellectuals were rounded up and butchered. Many were tortured to death.

Their decomposing bodies, kicked over by crowds and feasted on by dogs, still lie scattered among water-logged clay pits on the outskirts of the city.

Hundreds go daily to the scene, taking their children with them.

They had a fresh body to gape at Sunday. A young man had been shot in the chest, and a big crowd watched his death throes. His arm had been twisted until it split, and his ankles slashed with knives.

People in the crowd claimed he was a Bengali killed by Bi-haris, but that seemed unlikely. Mutilated bodies are a common sight in the streets. Everywhere there is a lust for blood.

A Bihari student who revealed the whereabouts of a mass grave was seized and bound. Only the appearance of an Indian patrol saved him from the mob.

Four bound men were bludgeoned and bayoneted to death Saturday at the end of a public meeting called to celebrate the victory over Pakistan.

Abdul Kader Sadiq, a self-styled guerrilla general, told the crowd anyone who took the law into his own hands would be punished. He said his prisoners would be given a proper trial; as soon as he ended his speech, he gave the order for their execution.

With each bayonet thrust, the crowd roared, "Joi Bangla," the Bangla Desh battle cry.

As the blood flowed, Gen. Sagat Singh, commander of the Indian troops in Dacca, was telling newsmen at his headquarters, "I see a rosy picture."

He said he hoped the government of Bangla Desh could persuade the Bihari community to remain.

"There are no minorities now," he said. "Everyone is a citizen of Bangla Desh."

Indian patrols are now disarming the Bangla Desh movement's Mukti Bahini guerrillas but it is a slow process.

"You have no more need for arms," an Indian lieutenant colonel told one guerrilla band. "We are looking after your safety, and the war is over."

There was an argument, but eventually the Mukti meekly handed over their guns.

So, too, did some 26,000 Pakistani troops in Dacca during the weekend.

They had been allowed to keep their weapons until all had been rounded up at the air port barracks and their safety secured.

Heath And Nixon Hold Meet; Ponder East Pakistan Relief

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath planned to urge President Nixon at their two-day meeting starting today to join in a cash program of international relief for the war-stricken millions of East Pakistan.

Authoritative sources said the British leader was certain American aid on a multimillion-dollar scale is essential for two reasons:

—With their food dwindling and their communications shattered the Bengalis need help directly.

—The United States must move fast to reverse the consequences of having backed the regime of President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan.

Heath is ready to pledge full British participation in an emergency program, a high-ranking British source reported. France, West Germany and other West European nations are expected to join into reduce Indian reliance on the Soviet Union for relief.

Nixon's meeting with Heath is the third in a series he has arranged with allied leaders in advance of his journey to Peking and Moscow. The President's aim is to reassure America's allies their interests will not be jeopardized by his talks with the Chinese and Russians.

But Heath means to use the occasion for a study in depth of the future course of interallied relations in a fast-changing world.

One of the first matters he planned to take up with Nixon is how the Western powers can salvage what they can from the ruins of Indian-American relations.

After lunch together, Nixon and Heath were to meet through the afternoon with only two aides alongside them: Henry Kissinger, Nixon's adviser on national security affairs, and the British Cabinet secretary, Sir Burke Trend.

Security Council Deadlocked Over Successor To Thant

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Diplomats predicted that the Security Council might remain deadlocked today in its efforts to choose a new U.N. secretary-general.

"Today might not be the last day," said one. "It might be Tuesday."

Another said the deadlock could last even longer, forcing the General Assembly to delay its plans to adjourn Tuesday.

Secretary-General U Thant is retiring Dec. 31.

The assembly can appoint the new secretary-general only after a recommendation from the 15-member Security Council. To get a recommendation, a candidate must receive the votes of nine council members and escape a veto.

One diplomat said the five veto-holding permanent members probably would vote the same as last Friday, when one or more of them rejected all seven candidates.

The five—Britain, China, France, the Soviet Union and the United States—met Saturday and produced a new list of nine candidates for the council to vote on today, diplomatic sources said. Other nominations have been made in the council.

Top votegetters at the secret council session Friday were reported to be U.N. Ambassadors Kurt Waldheim of Austria and Max Jakobson of Finland; Felipe Herrera of Chile, former president of the Inter-American Bank, and Gunnar Jarring, Swedish ambassador to Moscow and the U.N. special representative to the Middle East.

Butz Boosts Nixon Drive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has burst onto the 1972 political scene as the key downfield blocker in President Nixon's race through the farm belt.

Charges that the administration is against small farmers and for huge, corporate interests will be challenged with a bang, not a whimper, Butz, 62, says he's a fighter and likes to punch.

Moreover, Butz said in an interview, he will stump the farm belt on behalf of Republican candidates "on our team" in 1972.

Butz said he expects 1972 to be a lively scrap for the hearts and votes of rural America.

An example of the fray ahead was signalled last Friday by Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, who told a National Farmers Organization audience Nixon "has turned his back" on farmers.

He was a seventh grade student at Zane Trace Junior High School.

He is survived by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stevens, Chillicothe; three sisters, Deborah, Mary Christine and Vina; Belle Kramer, all of the home; four brothers, Glen Richard Jr., Ft. Bragg, N. C.; Cecil, Jack and Paul, all of the home.

Bobby Baker Comes Up For Parole

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert G. (Bobby) Baker, the former U.S. Senate secretary who came to Washington as a page boy and left a millionaire, is seeking parole from a three-year federal prison sentence.

Baker, antiwar priest Daniel Berrigan and three other less well-known federal inmates take their pleas for early release to the U.S. Board of Parole today.

Berrigan, turned down in a parole bid last July, is seeking a rehearing on the basis of undisclosed new evidence in his case. No actual decision as to his release will be made at today's session.

The eight-member board takes up the cases in closed-door session with prisoners not on hand, but represented by lawyers.

The votes by which decisions are made are never made public.

Baker, who entered the Federal Penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., 11 months ago, is eligible for parole from his one-to-three-years sentence on Jan. 13.

Most Americans To Benefit From Income Tax Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cuts in federal income taxes that take effect Jan. 1 will put more cash into the pockets of most Americans.

Families with just one wage earner will benefit the most, but there's good news for almost all taxpayers.

Some of the decrease in federal deductions from paychecks may be offset by higher state and local taxes. There's also an increase in the income lid for Social Security taxes, though the 5.2 per cent rate of deduction probably will remain the same.

The ceiling goes from $7,800 this year to $9,000 in 1972, meaning deductions will continue for a longer time next year.

But the changes in federal tax exemptions and allowances should boost American spending power to levels never seen before, according to Internal Revenue Service officials.

A generous 92nd Congress has sped up the impact of tax-reform laws passed in 1969 and raised the standard exemption for individuals and their dependents from $675 in 1971 to $750 in 1972. That means the IRS will count on bigger personal exemptions next year and so will take out a smaller chunk of each paycheck.

Then there's the standard deduction for taxpayers who choose to claim an estimate of items like medical expenses, moving costs and local and state taxes, rather than taking the trouble to figure them out by item.

Next year's standard deduction will be 15 per cent or $2,000, whichever is lower, compared with 13 per cent or $1,500 this year.

Poor people also get a break. The government is in the third stage of an effort to lift the federal tax burden from their backs.

A special low-income standard deduction built into the tax tables goes up from $1,050 in 1971 to $1,300 in 1972.

IRS officials say there is a potential snag developing for married taxpayers with one wage earner in the house, because of an attempt to find a more equitable tax rate for single persons.

Here's what happened.

The IRS this year tried to assure that single people would not pay more than 20 per cent above the tax paid by couples in the same income bracket. It succeeded, but in the process took out too little money from singles' paychecks and for similar reasons from those of husbands and wives who both work, leaving both categories with hefty tax bills to pay in April.

Congress reacted by passing a law allowing higher deduction rates across the board next year. It won't help in April, but to offset the effect on families with a single wage earner, the IRS urges they claim one more

"MOST SIGNIFICANT" — President Nixon announces the "most significant monetary agreement in the history of the world" during a news conference at the end of a two-day meeting of the ten richest non-Communist nations. Nixon made an announced appearance at the "Group of Ten" meeting held at the Smithsonian Institution before leaving for a trip to New York City. At right is Karl Schiller, West Germany's finance minister.

Monetary Accord Strengthens U.S. Trade Position

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new set of monetary values agreed upon by the Group of Ten richest non-Communist nations should boost U.S. employment and make American products more competitive with foreign goods.

But it will have little immediate impact on the average consumer—unless he is planning to travel overseas or buy an imported car, camera or other expensive foreign-made items.

The new monetary rates, agreed upon Saturday night, center around a U.S. agreement to change the official price of gold from $35 an ounce to $38 an ounce.

The net effect will be to make U.S. goods cheaper overseas and most imports more expensive in the United States. That, in turn, is expected to spur U.S. business production and produce more jobs.

Chairman Donald Rumsfeld of the U.S. Council of Economic Advisors predicted Sunday that the change would create a half-million to 750,000 jobs in the United States.

Foreign cars, cameras and other items will cost noticeably more. And Americans traveling abroad will find that they will have to spend more or see less, since foreign currencies will cost more.

But there should be little over-all impact on U.S. living costs, since imports account for only 4 per cent of American purchases.

The U.S. devaluation amounts to 7.89 per cent in relation to other currencies, such as the British pound, which are not being revalued; or 8.57 per cent in relation to gold.

Some other countries in the Group of Ten are revaluing their currencies upward, making the change even more dramatic.

For example, the Japanese yen is being revalued upward 16.88 per cent in relation to the newly devalued dollar and the German mark will undergo a 13.57 per cent upward revaluation in relation to the devalued dollar.

This will be softened somewhat by the U.S. agreement to lift the 10-per-cent import surcharge imposed Aug. 15 by President Nixon.

Lifting the surcharge will have the effect of returning import duties to their pre-Aug. 15 levels from the current 10 per cent across-the-board charge on dutiable items.

The change in the "official" price of gold—the price the United States will pay in transactions with other countries—requires congressional approval, which cannot come until next month at the earliest, since Congress is not in session.

But the practical effects of the agreement on commercial or personal transactions will be more immediate, since those transactions are not directly tied to "official" currency values.

Bobby Baker Comes Up For Parole

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert G. (Bobby) Baker, the former U.S. Senate secretary who came to Washington as a page boy and left a millionaire, is seeking parole from a three-year federal prison sentence.

Baker, antiwar priest Daniel Berrigan and three other less well-known federal inmates take their pleas for early release to the U.S. Board of Parole today.

Berrigan, turned down in a parole bid last July, is seeking a rehearing on the basis of undisclosed new evidence in his case. No actual decision as to his release will be made at today's session.

The eight-member board takes up the cases in closed-door session with prisoners not on hand, but represented by lawyers.

The votes by which decisions are made are never made public.

Baker, who entered the Federal Penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., 11 months ago, is eligible for parole from his one-to-three-years sentence on Jan. 13.

Most Americans To Benefit From Income Tax Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cuts in federal income taxes that take effect Jan. 1 will put more cash into the pockets of most Americans.

Families with just one wage earner will benefit the most, but there's good news for almost all taxpayers.

Some of the decrease in federal deductions from paychecks may be offset by higher state and local taxes. There's also an increase in the income lid for Social Security taxes, though the 5.2 per cent rate of deduction probably will remain the same.

The ceiling goes from $7,800 this year to $9,000 in 1972, meaning deductions will continue for a longer time next year.

But the changes in federal tax exemptions and allowances should boost American spending power to levels never seen before, according to Internal Revenue Service officials.

A generous 92nd Congress has sped up the impact of tax reform laws passed in 1969 and raised the standard exemption for individuals and their dependents from $675 in 1971 to $750 in 1972. That means the IRS will count on bigger personal exemptions next year and so will take out a smaller chunk of each paycheck.

Then there's the standard deduction for taxpayers who choose to claim an estimate of items like medical expenses, moving costs and local and state taxes, rather than taking the trouble to figure them out item by item.

Next year's standard deduction will be 15 per cent or $2,000, whichever is lower, compared with 13 per cent or $1,500 this year.

Poor people also get a break. The government is in the third stage of an effort to lift the federal tax burden from their backs. A special low-income standard deduction built into the tax tables goes up from $1,050 in 1971 to $1,300 in 1972.

IRS officials say there is a potential snag developing for married taxpayers with one wage earner in the house, because of an attempt to find a more equitable tax rate for single persons.

Here's what happened.

The IRS this year tried to assure that single people would not pay more than 20 per cent above the tax paid by couples in the same income bracket. It succeeded, but in the process took out too little money from singles' paychecks and for similar reasons from those of husbands and wives who both work, leaving both categories with hefty tax bills to pay in April.

Congress reacted by passing a law allowing higher deduction rates across the board next year. It won't help in April, but to offset the effect on families with a single wage earner, the IRS urges they claim one more (Continued on Page 2)

Thieu Announces Holiday Truce Of 24 Hours Each

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu tonight announced 24-hour cease-fires for allied forces in South Vietnam for Christmas, New Year's and the Tet celebration of the lunar new year in mid-February.

Thieu coupled his announcement with an appeal to the Communists on the occasion of Christmas to "end the fighting immediately and completely" throughout Indochina so that prompt and serious discussions could be held to restore peace.

The Viet Cong announced nearly three weeks ago that its forces would observe cease-fires of three days each for Christmas and New Year's and four days for Tet.

In the air war, North Vietnamese antiaircraft defenses shot down four American Phantom fighter-bombers along the border with northern Laos, the U.S. Command announced Monday. It was North Vietnam's biggest success in the air war in more than three years.

Two of the eight crewmen aboard the F4 Phantoms were rescued in a massive search operation by scores of planes. The other six Americans are listed as missing.

The U.S. Command said heavy rains and high winds hampered the search over the mountainous jungles 240 miles north of the demilitarized zone.

The North Vietnamese had reported the downing of four planes earlier, but the U.S. Command delayed its admission of the losses because the search for the crews was still on.

On the ground, Communist forces marked the 25th anniversary Sunday of the start of the Indochina war and the 11th anniversary today of the founding of the National Liberation Front with attacks in South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

North Vietnamese and Pthet Lao troops overran a Thai fire base on the Plin of Jars in the third day of a dry-season offensive in Laos. Two howitzers and two other artillery pieces were reported captured by the enemy.

It was the second allied position to fall in 24 hours.

Cambodian troops reportedly recaptured the key hill position of Phnom Baset, 14 miles northwest of Phnom Penh, without a fight. This raised speculation that the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong may be withdrawing from positions threatening the Cambodian capital for more than a month.

NFO Members At National Convention

Thirteen members of the Pickaway County National Farmers Organization attended the annual convention in Kansas City, Mo., last week. The local delegates were:

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Bandy, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Reiterman, Mr. and Mrs. William Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Carle, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Conrad and Joe Carle.

During the business session Friday, Oren Lee Staley, Rea, Mo., was re-elected president of the organization. DeVon Woodland, Blackfoot, Idaho, was elected vice president succeeding Erhard Pfingsten, Sergeant Bluff, Iowa, who has served in the capacity since 1962. Pfingsten was not a candidate for re-election. Woodland operates a 340 acre irrigated family farm. He has served in the NFO in a number of capacities, including Idaho state president and national director from the state for four years.

"We've two big jobs to do," Staley told 12,000 delegates and members as they headed home from the organization's annual convention Friday.

He called on NFO members to urge every individual farmer in America to enlist in one, great common effort to finish getting agriculture organized and to bring all agricultural production into a unified, collective bargaining structure through the NFO's Collection, Dispatch and Delivery System.

Growth and accomplishments of the organization were noted during the 3-day convention, highlighted by an array of guest speakers.

They included Nicholas Johnson, Federal Communications Commission; Ralph Nader, consumer advocate; senator George McGovern (D-S. D.); Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.); Robert Dole (R-Kan.); chairman, Republican National Central Committee; and Edmund Muskie (D-Maine).

In his State of Affairs message to the convention, Staley warned members of the threat of conglomerate and vertical integration take-over of agriculture. He said the NFO would seek alliances with other groups who want a change from America's drift toward corporate domination of both economic and social affairs.

Thieves Hit New Holland

Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff and a special agent from the Bureau of Criminal Investigation, London, are investigating a pair of thefts in New Holland Monday morning.

Radcliff received a call 6 a.m. Monday from a deliveryman, who discovered thieves had been in Jack's Cardinal Market, New Holland.

Radcliff found that they had gained entrance through a rear window in the building.

Beside taking several cartons of cigarettes and five 20 pound hams, the thieves punched the safe in the market and made off with about $600 in cash.

"It was a professional job," Radcliff said. "They knocked the dial off and punched right into the safe. I estimate it took about ten minutes."

Footprints in the rear of the building indicate the thieves parked their car behind Kirk's Furniture store, New Holland, which was also burglarized Sunday night.

Entrance was gained through the front door. Several television sets were reported missing, but the number is undetermined until a thorough inventory is completed.

Both the BCI agent and Radcliff believe the thefts were done by the same burglars.

Rain, Snow Covers Much Of Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Rain and snow fell on much of the nation today as a series of low pressure disturbances traveled across the country.

Thunderstorms were reported along the Gulf Coast, while moist air moving north from the Gulf brought rain or showers to the Mid Atlantic states and the southern Midwest.

Another low pressure system brought various combinations of rain, snow, drizzle and sleet to the Great Lakes, the Ohio Valley and the Appalachians.

Rain in the Northwest extended eastward across the mountains, finally turning to scattered snow in the Dakotas.

Clear skies were the rule, however, in the Southwest and southern Pacific Coast.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 25 below zero at Houlton, Me., to 75 at Key West, Fla.

The National Weather Service predicts occasional snow and continued cold weather in the Northeast and across the northern tier of states, but mild or warmer weather elsewhere.

Fair skies are forecast from the Midwest to the southern Great Plains and into the central and southern Rockies, but rain is expected in the rest of the country.

Fair Manager Hopeful Studied

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Expositions Commission will begin interviewing 14 applicants Wednesday for the $17,500 a-year post being left by State Fair Manager Jerry Kaltenbach.

L. William Burns, a screening committee member, said few qualified persons have been found because the post pays less than the $30,000 to $50,000 offered to some state fair managers.

Kaltenbach's resignation is effective Dec. 31.

The applicants will be interviewed at the Holiday Inn Motel in Lancaster.

Video Taped Yule Greetings Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — An offer to send video taped holiday greetings to prisoners of war has brought a heavy response from American families.

Melvin Bailey, a New York television producer, originated the idea and has been negotiating with embassies friendly to North Vietnam in efforts to get the tapes through to prisoners. Bailey has high hopes but no assurances the tapes will get through.

Two Accidents Investigated

The Pickaway County Sheriff's Department investigated two accidents Sunday, and cited drivers in both wrecks for negligence.

David E. Hicks, 29, 131 S. Pickaway St., was arrested for failing to yield the right of way. He was driving from a parking lot onto County Road 511, 9:20 a.m. Sunday, and hit a car driven by Donald Mutchman, 35, Route 1, Ashville. Neither driver was injured.

Three people were injured in another two-car crash on Route 23 and the Red Bridge-East Ringgold Road 5:45 p.m. Sunday.

The accident occurred when Callie L. Bess, 24, Branchland, W. Va., ran through a stop sign on Route 23 and hit a car driven by John J. Newton Jr., 23, Martin, Ohio.

Two passengers in Newton's car, Betty Newton, 19, and John Newton, 23, complained of lacerations and bump.

George Lawrence, 48, a passenger in Bess's car, also complained of bumps and bruises.

Bess was cited for a stop sign violation.

Smithsonian Marks Yuletide With Display Of Old Toys

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Smithsonian Institution heralded the start of Christmas week by putting on public display more than 500 toys dating from 1875 to about 1950.

There are trains and fire engines, cap pistols and other guns, mail trucks, circus wagons, steam engines, stoves and blimps and folk figures.

The display in the Museum of Science and Technology includes many of the best examples from a collection of more than 2,800 vintage toys given to the Smithsonian by Sears, Roebuck and Co., which bought them from a private collector.

The collection is valued by Sears at several hundred thousand dollars.

At an invitational preview for more than 500 persons Sunday afternoon, there was carol singing and other music and the showing of some of the colorful and imaginative films about toys produced by designer and filmmaker Charles Eames.

There also was a demonstration of the technique of sand-casting, the method by which most of the toys in the exhibit were produced.

The exhibit was designed in part to illustrate how current events have influenced children's toys. A cast iron airplane, dating from 1927, is patterned after Charles Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" with the name "Lindy" across the wing.

Another depicts the famous trotting horse Dan Patch. And some are modeled on comic strip characters—the Toonerville Trolley, Maggie and Jiggs.

"The old American toy manufacturers were as canny as any today," Inez McClintock writes in the catalogue of the exhibit, titled "A Children's World: 1875-1950."

"So far no one has unearthed, or at least made public, the name of a 'well known sculptor' who modeled Hubley's horses. He was so ashamed that his remunerative sideline would damage his artistic reputation that his destiny was a well guarded secret . . .

"Are some of these horses models of his work? Are they perhaps more on display than his popular Victorian sculpture?"

THIS note of information from the county elected officials . . . Offices of the elected officials will be closed the regular half day Wednesday (Luckily, because that's when the courthouse party is planned) and all day Friday to allow employees time to share the holiday with their families . . . Of course the courthouse will be closed Saturday, Christmas Day.

And finally, a man earning $15,000 in the same status in 1971, had $42.80 taken out. In 1972 with the special exemption the amount will be $33.90. Without the allowance, the deduction will be $37.30 weekly.

That way, the IRS says the taxpayer in such a household won't reduce his spending power during the year by having more deducted from his check than is necessary.

Here are a few examples of how the new deduction rates will affect taxpayers at various income levels in 1972:

A man who earns $8,000 annually, while his wife stays at home taking care of their two children, had $15.70 deducted from his weekly paycheck in 1971. In 1972, if he claims the additional exemption, $11 will be deducted. If he doesn't, $13.30 will be taken out.

A man earning $12,000 annually in similar status, had $31.60 taken out of his weekly check in 1971. If he claims the special allowance in 1972, the amount deducted will be $23.80. If he does not, $28.50 will be taken out weekly.

And finally, a man earning $15,000 in the same status in 1971, had $42.80 taken out. In 1972 with the special exemption the amount will be $33.90. Without the allowance, the deduction will be $37.30 weekly.

Small Child Sets Gasoline Ablaze

A small flash fire took city firemen to 407 E. Ohio St. at 4:20 Sunday afternoon where a can of gasoline ignited in a garage of the residence of Hazel Frazier.

Firemen reported that men had been working on a sports car in the garage and had left a can of gasoline on the floor in front of the vehicle. A six-year-old child was playing with matches and ignited the fuel. He was not injured. Damage, which was estimated at $50, was slight burns to the paint on the front of the automobile.

Radcliff received a call 6 a.m. Monday from a deliveryman, who discovered thieves had been in Jack's Cardinal Market, New Holland.

Radcliff found that they had gained entrance through a rear window in the building. Beside taking several cartons of cigarettes and five 20 pound hams, the thieves punched the safe in the market and made off with about $600 in cash.

"It was a professional job," Radcliff said. "They knocked the dial off and punched right into the safe. I estimate it took about ten minutes."

Footprints in the rear of the building indicate the thieves parked their car behind Kirk's Furniture store, New Holland, which was also burglarized Sunday night.

Entrance was gained through the front door. Several television sets were reported missing, but the number is undetermined until a thorough inventory is completed.

Both the BCI agent and Radcliff believe the thefts were done by the same burglars.

Two Accidents Investigated

The Pickaway County Sheriff's Department investigated two accidents Sunday, and cited drivers in both wrecks for negligence.
David E. Hicks, 29, 131 S. Pickaway St., was arrested for failing to yield the right of way. He was driving from a parking lot onto County Road 511, 9:20 a.m. Sunday, and hit a car driven by Donald Mutcham, 35, Route 1, Ashville. Neither driver was injured.

Three people were injured in another two-car crash on Route 23 and the Red Bridge-East Ringgold Road 5:45 p.m. Sunday.
The accident occurred when Callie L. Bess, 24, Branchland, W. Va., ran through a stop sign on Route 23 and hit a car driven by John J. Newton Jr., 23, Martin, Ohio.

Two passengers in Newton's car, Betty Newton, 19, and John Newton, 23, complained of lacerations and bump.
George Lawrence, 48, a passenger in Bess's car, also complained of bumps and bruises.

Bess was cited for a stop sign violation.

Cab Service Back In Circleville

Cab service is available in Circleville and can be had by calling 474-6513.

Police Chief Robert Temple announced beginning Tuesday the two parking spaces in front of the American Hotel will be reserved for cabs. Violators will be ticketed.

Subdivision Okayed

The plat for the second addition to Washington Meadows Subdivision was approved by County Commissioners Wayne Hines, Charles Morris and Dick T. Tootle today.

Submitted by Ray Sifford, the plat is for four lots.

On the ground, Communist forces marked the 25th anniversary Sunday of the start of the Indochina war and the 11th anniversary today of the founding of the National Liberation Front with attacks in South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

North Vietnamese and Phet Lao troops overran a Thai fire base on the Plin of Jars in the third day of a dry-season offensive in Laos. Two howitzers and two other artillery pieces were reported captured by the enemy.

It was the second allied position to fall in 24 hours. Cambodian troops reportedly recaptured the key hill position of Phnom Baset, 14 miles northwest of Phnom Penh, without a fight. This raised speculation that the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong may be withdrawing from positions threatening the Cambodian capital for more than a month.

The U.S. Command said heavy rains and high winds hampered the search over the mountainous jungles 240 miles north of the demilitarized zone.

The North Vietnamese had reported the downing of four planes earlier, but the U.S. Command delayed its admission of the losses because the search for the crews was still on.

Rain, Snow Covers Much Of Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Rain and snow fell on much of the nation today as a series of low pressure disturbances traveled across the country.

Thunderstorms were reported along the Gulf Coast, while moist air moving north from the Gulf brought rain or showers to the Mid Atlantic states and the southern Midwest.

Another low pressure system brought various combinations of rain, snow, drizzle and sleet to the Great Lakes, the Ohio Valley and the Appalachians.

Rain in the Northwest extended eastward across the mountains, finally turning to scattered snow in the Dakotas.

Clear skies were the rule, however, in the Southwest and southern Pacific Coast.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 25 below zero at Houlton, Me., to 75 at Key West, Fla.

The National Weather Service predicts occasional snow and continued cold weather in the Northeast and across the northern tier of states, but mild or warmer weather elsewhere.

Fair skies are forecast from the Midwest to the southern Great Plains and into the central and southern Rockies, but rain is expected in the rest of the country.

Fair Manager Hopefuls Studied

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Expositions Commission will begin interviewing 14 applicants Wednesday for the $17,500-a-year post being left by State Fair Manager Jerry Kaltenbach.

L. William Burns, a screening committee member, said few qualified persons have been found because the post pays less than the $30,000 to $50,000 offered to some state fair managers.

Kaltenbach's resignation is effective Dec. 31.

The applicants will be interviewed at the Holiday Inn Motel in Lancaster.

Video Taped Yule Greetings Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — An offer to send video taped holiday greetings to prisoners of war has brought a heavy response from American families.

Melvin Bailey, a New York television producer, originated the idea and has been negotiating with embassies friendly to North Vietnam in efforts to get the tapes through to prisoners.

Bailey has high hopes but no assurances the tapes will get through.

NFO Members At National Convention

Thirteen members of the Pickaway County National Farmers Organization attended the annual convention in Kansas City, Mo., last week. The local delegates were:

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Bandy, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Reiterman, Mr. and Mrs. William Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Carle, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Conrad and Joe Carle.

During the business session Friday, Oren Lee Staley, Rea, Mo., was re-elected president of the organization.

DeVon Woodland, Blackfoot, Idaho, was elected vice president succeeding Erhard Pfingsten, Sergeant Bluff, Iowa, who has served in the capacity since 1962.

Pfingsten was not a candidate for re-election. Woodland operates a 340 acre irrigated family farm. He has served in the NFO in a number of capacities, including Idaho state president and national director from the state for four years.

"We've two big jobs to do," Staley told 12,000 delegates and members as they headed home from the organization's annual convention Friday.

He called on NFO members to urge every individual farmer in America to enlist in one, great common effort to finish getting agriculture organized and to bring all agricultural production into a unified, collective bargaining structure through the NFO's Collection, Dispatch and Delivery System.

Growth and accomplishments of the organization were noted during the 3-day convention, highlighted by an array of guest speakers.

They included Nicholas Johnson, Federal Communications Commission; Ralph Nader, consumer advocate; senator George McGovern (D-S. D.); Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.); Robert Dole (R-Kan.); chairman, Republican National Central Committee; and Edmund Muskie (D-Maine).

In his State of Affairs message to the convention, Staley warned members of the threat of conglomerate and vertical integration take-over of agriculture. He said the NFO would seek alliances with other groups who want a change from America's drift toward corporate domination of both economic and social affairs.

He said the size of the regular Army is about half a million below what it was at the Vietnam war peak in 1969 and is due to fall even lower. The Army now totals about one million men.

Smithsonian Marks Yuletide With Display Of Old Toys

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Smithsonian Institution heralded the start of Christmas week by putting on public display more than 500 toys dating from 1875 to about 1950.

There are trains and fire engines, cap pistols and other guns, mail trucks, circus wagons, steam engines, stoves and blimps and folk figures.

The display in the Museum of Science and Technology includes many of the best examples from a collection of more than 2,800 vintage toys given to the Smithsonian by Sears, Roebuck and Co., which bought them from a private collector.

The collection is valued by Sears at several hundred thousand dollars.

At an invitational preview for more than 500 persons Sunday afternoon, there was carol singing and other music and the showing of some of the colorful and imaginative films about toys produced by designer and filmmaker Charles Eames.

There also was a demonstration of the technique of sand-casting, the method by which most of the toys in the exhibit were produced.

The exhibit was designed in part to illustrate how current events have influenced children's toys. A cast iron airplane, dating from 1927, is patterned after Charles Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" with the name "Lindy" across the wing.

Another depicts the famous trotting horse Dan Patch. And some are modeled on comic strip characters—the Toonerville Trolley, Maggie and Jiggs.

"The old American toy manufacturers were as canny as any today," Inez McClintock writes in the catalogue of the exhibit, titled "A Children's World: 1875-1950."

"So far no one has unearthed, or at least made public, the name of a 'well known sculptor' who modeled Hubley's horses. He was so ashamed that his remunerative sideline would damage his artistic reputation that his destiny was a well guarded secret."

"Are some of these horses models of his work? Are they perhaps more on display than his popular Victorian sculpture?"

of holiday shoppers ... Policemen decided to have him crawl down the chimney, since that's his method of operation anyway.

COMMISSIONERS Dick T. Tootle, Wayne Hines and Charles Morris agreed today not to argue about anything since it is so close to Christmas ... And they also agreed to wish everybody in the county a "very Merry Christmas" ... Then they got back to disagreeing on matters of politics.

THIS note of information from the county elected officials ... Offices of the elected officials will be closed the regular half day Wednesday (Luckily, because that's when the courthouse party is planned) and all day Friday to allow employees time to share the holiday with their families ... Of course the courthouse will be closed Saturday, Christmas Day.

Small Child Sets Gasoline Ablaze

A small flash fire took city firemen to 407 E. Ohio St. at 4:20 Sunday afternoon where a can of gasoline ignited in a garage of the residence of Hazel Frazier.

Firemen reported that men had been working on a sports car in the garage and had left a can of gasoline on the floor in front of the vehicle. A six-year-old child was playing with matches and ignited the fuel. He was not injured. Damage, which was estimated at $50, was slight burns to the paint on the front of the automobile.

Foundation Payments Made To County

State foundation payments for Pickaway County School Districts totalled $82,979.80 for the month of December.

Circleville City Schools received a payment of $43,479.27; Logan was given $7,915.19 in state assistance for the month; Teays Valley was sent a check for $19,401.18 and Westfall Schools received $12,184.16.

In addition, a separate payment was made to the Pickaway County Board of Election totalling $4,711.39.

exemption than really exists for tax year 1972.

That way, the IRS says the taxpayer in such a household won't reduce his spending power during the year by having more deducted from his check than is necessary.

Here are a few examples of how the new deduction rates will affect taxpayers at various income levels in 1972:

A man who earns $8,000 annually, while his wife stays at home taking care of their two children, had $15.70 deducted from his weekly paycheck in 1971. In 1972, if he claims the additional exemption, $11 will be deducted. If he doesn't, $13.30 will be taken out.

A man earning $12,000 annually in similar status, had $31.60 taken out of his weekly check in 1971. If he claims the special allowance in 1972, the amount deducted will be $23.80. If he does not, $26.50 will be taken out weekly.

And finally, a man earning $15,000 in the same status in 1971, had $42.80 taken out. In 1972 with the special exemption the amount will be $33.90. Without the allowance, the deduction will be $37.30 weekly.

Population Trend

Demographers are divided in their analyses of future population trends in the United States, but one fact is evident. The population is changing, both in age and numbers.

At the moment it is going through a depression similar to the wake which follows the crest of a large wave.

Births are leveling off following the growth of the 1950s and 1960s. While the full effect of the baby boom has not been felt — these people have yet to grow up and raise their own families — the boom has ended.

That fact is rippling through certain industries, such as the toy industry, where declines are being recorded. It is also showing up in lower enrollments in elementary classrooms. And in the abrupt ending of the teacher shortage.

One distinct possibility of the population change is that the age balance will begin to swing toward the older side. As one consequence, some experts are predicting a zero growth rate before the end of this century.

That is not necessarily bad, in light of the rate at which natural resources are being consumed. But it could result in dramatic alterations in industrial, economic and service priorities.

Outdoors Classroom

Before long the test of a prosperous school district may be whether it has a "school away from school" where students can go for environmental studies in natural surroundings. There are obvious difficulties, including the legalities of one state's schools owning land in another state.

The public schools of the District of Columbia have, in effect, acquired a place where students can live in the mountains for a few days while learning about nature. The schools didn't buy the place; they just made arrangements with the federal agency that owns it.

The Park Service and the National Park Foundation have published the first in a series of soft-cover textbooks and teachers' lesson materials called "Adventure in Environment," especially designed for use on an expedition to a National Environmental Study Area.

Before this school year is over, thousands of students will have camped at NESA sites from Cape Cod to Redwood National Park. A problem that remains to be solved is how to pay the costs of transportation.

Late Gift Buying

One of the true delights of the Yuletide season is the feeling of well being that seems to come from nowhere to put a man's spirit at peace in the brief hours of Christmas Eve.

The feeling is in direct proportion to the way in which a man has cared for his own. It is both a physical and a spiritual expression of the sometimes distorted maxim that it is more blessed to give than to receive.

It has been asserted that only a person's conscience can jar this benign state. If that is so, perhaps the mass conscience of the community could stand jogging.

If you are late in gift buying, or if you feel that your job is done, we urgently ask your consideration of one final gift:

Buy something for someone who is actually in need.

According To Boyle

By LOUISE COOK (For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP) — Trying to cope with the intricacies of modern double talk in a foreign language is almost impossible.

So we discovered on a recent trip to France when my husband lifted a suitcase, strained a muscle and wound up flat on his back in a small town called Chalons-sur-Saone.

Wracking my brain to recall my college French, I ventured to the hotel desk and explained my husband had hurt his back. Actually, I couldn't remember the word for hurt so it came out that he had wounded his back.

Encouraged by sympathetic nods, I asked if there was a doctor nearby who spoke English. A hurried consultation between the desk clerk and the manager and a quick telephone call resulted in the announcement that just such a doctor would arrive two hours hence.

Triumphant, I returned to the hotel room to reassure my husband, still unable to stand.

Finally the doctor arrived, greeting us cordially—in French.

After two rounds of hellos, I ventured a timid question: "Vous parlez Anglais, oui?" "You speak English don't you?" "Non."—The answer was clear in any language.

How the mixup occurred, no one knew, but the situation was getting desperate, so I agreed to translate for my non-French-speaking husband.

The only problem was: how do you explain where it hurts when you're not the one who's sick and you only understand one word out of every three the doctor uses?

Pointing helped a lot. We managed to isolate the area of pain. When the doctor jabbed hard and my husband screamed there was a satisfied "ah."

Now the problem was to explain what the trouble was. This sort of thing had happened once before and it turned out to be a torn muscle. Getting the idea of muscle across wasn't too hard—the words are almost identical in English and French. Torn left me stumped.

Finally I picked up a piece of paper, ripped it and elicited another pleased "ah" from the doctor.

Out came a hypodermic and in went a pain-killing drug—or so my husband and I somewhat apprehensively hoped. A prescription was written—much more legible than the ones doled out by American doctors—and given to the bellboy to take to the pharmacy.

Then came another surprise. It seems that in France, particularly in the country, there's something known as an infirmarian—sort of like a visiting nurse. After about half an hour of explanations, we finally understood—the infirmarian would return for two days, morning and night, for further injections.

True to the doctor's word, the infirmarian—a red-cheeked country woman of about 60—arrived promptly the next morning, gave the injection with a no-nonsense air and promised to return.

Two days later, my husband was walking—slowly and stiffly to be sure, but at least he was on his feet.

During a stop in Paris later we recounted the tale to an English-speaking friend. "You should have called a veterinarian," he said in all seriousness. "They're used to patients who can't talk."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Is red meat harmful to people who have high blood pressure? Is there a need to avoid this or any other types of food for this condition?

Mrs. H. H., Tenn. Dear Mrs. H.: The myth about red meat as a cause or as a harmful factor in high blood pressure has long been discarded.

Despite the fact that there is no validity to the idea, the notion is still passed down generation to generation.

Red meat, when taken in moderation, contains many valuable nutrients. But its high protein content is essentially no different from the protein in other foods.

The treatment for high blood pressure, or hypertension, found new dimension with the discovery of valuable drugs for the reduction of pressure in certain of its types.

Less and less attention, therefore, is devoted to fads and fancies about food in relationship to the problem.

There may be other reasons why a physician may limit certain foods, because of high salt content for instance, or high caloric content or high fat content.

These suggestions, in addition to modern drugs, have been remarkably effective in the control of many types of high blood pressure.

printed into the sensitive psyche of the child.

Fear must be considered a communicable disease transmitted unwittingly from person to person. To control your children's fear of dogs, you should begin by letting them know that you yourself are not afraid.

Then let them get acquainted with a dog that is known to be gentle. They should be taught to approach all dogs in a very specific way.

First, they should ask the owner if the dog is friendly and likes to be petted. If so, they should extend their hand and let the dog come to them. If they talk nicely at the same time the dog will trust them, smell their hand, and then they can pat the dog's head.

Of course, if the children have a tiny puppy of their own to play with and grow up with, the chances their fear of dogs would no longer be a problem.

Their fear of dogs is obvious to you. It might be wise to plan some psychological testing for them. Other significant fears might be revealed.

With proper guidance perhaps many of these anxieties might be nipped before they are deeply embedded in their emotional makeup.

Need To Keep Suez Closed

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Just what is our foreign policy? Does it mesh with our military policy? The Pentagon doesn't see all the cables to the State Department bearing on the Middle East, where our Navy is vulnerable. Israel's Prime Minister Golda Meir can't make head or tail of our refusal to sell the Phantom planes to her beleaguered country. Are we merely trying to open the Suez Canal for peaceful uses, which could be done tomorrow by the Egyptians without putting Arab soldiers on the East Bank? (The Israelis would agree to that.) Or are we trying to create a bridgehead on the Sinai side of Suez for the Egyptians that would inevitably tilt the military balance in their favor and so put them and the Russians one up on the Israelis in future negotiations?

There are no good answers to such questions because there is no overall logic governing our foreign policy thinking. We have sided, at least tacitly, with Pakistan in the current Indo-Pakistani war. Pakistan is a Red Chinese client. By playing up to the Red Chinese we hope to dissuade the Soviets from making a preventive strike at Mao Tse-tung's atomic installations.

The desire of the Nixon-Kissinger policy makers to "defuse" both actual and potential war situations is commendable. But we have gone about our peacemaking business in most clumsy fashion sacrificing an honest ally (Taiwan) in the process, raising distrust in Japan, and damaging frail democratic institutions in Thailand and South Korea.

The Soviet intentions are clear. Moscow is more worried at the moment about the heretical struggles in the Communist world than it is about capitalist "encirclement." So it is trying to put a clamp on Red China. With West Germany's Willy Brandt making things easy for the Soviets in Eastern Europe, Moscow has been able to shift big forces to the Mongolian frontier in Asia. Thus one arm of the clamp is in place. The forthcoming Indian victory over Pakistan, which has been made possible by Russian arms, will soon add the southern pincher.

The Soviets will assuredly get Indian Ocean naval bases from India in return for help in the Pakistani war. But as long as the Suez Canal remains closed, the bases won't help the Soviets achieve all of their push-to-the-south aims. Why, then, does our State Department labor so hard to throw the Suez into Russian hands? Given the Administration's desire to keep the balance even between the Soviets and the Red Chinese, why can't Nixon and Kissinger see that it is to their advantage to keep the Suez closed as long as possible? Or at least until such time as we can rebuild our Navy, so that it could turn the Eastern Mediterranean into a trap for the Russians if they risked sending too many ships through the Canal into the Indian Ocean.

Admiral H. G. Rickover, the father of our Polaris-Poseidon atomic submarine fleet, does not comment on politics. But the speeches he has been making in behalf of beefing up our conventional Navy (aircraft carriers, surface missile ships and the like) point up the dangers of a foreign policy that does not mesh with military policy.

If we had a modern Mediterranean fleet the opening of the Suez Canal would not be such a free gift to Russia. A stronger U.S. Navy would keep the Soviets from capitalizing on the victory of their new client, India, in the Pakistani war. A stronger U.S. Navy would be a boon to the Red Chinese who now tremble with fear that they are about to be isolated in Asia. It would also help insure Western Europe's oil supply, and Japan's as well.

The conventions of diplomacy being what they are, Israel's Golda Meir can't tell Secretary of State Rogers that he is being geopolitically stupid in trying to force the opening of the Suez before we have a rehabilitated conventional Navy. All she can do is to ask for delivery of Phantom planes to keep Israel's own balance in the Middle East. If Golda Meir can't talk sense into Rogers, someone else should try.

Two days later, my husband was walking—slowly and stiffly to be sure, but at least he was on his feet.

During a stop in Paris later we recounted the tale to an English-speaking friend. "You should have called a veterinarian," he said in all seriousness. "They're used to patients who can't talk."

Circle Holds December Meet

Circle 3 of Good Shepherd United Methodist Church met in the home of Mrs. Clayton Lutz with 12 members and three guests, Mrs. Clayton Lutz, Mrs. Francis Azbell and Mrs. Helen Dunkle.

Mrs. Donald Wellington, circle leader, had a reading centered around Luke 2:7. She then had opening prayer.

Mrs. David Bond, assistant leader, reported on the types of programs that the society is to have in 1972. She stressed praying and working harder on the programs.

Mrs. Eugene Flowers, spiritual growth secretary, reported that January would be self-denial month and that each circle would have their own self-denial program. The thought for the month was to "Put Christ Back Into Christmas."

The circle will prepare a Christmas meal for a family. This will be a joint project.

Miss Lucille Kirkwood presented an impressive program with several members taking part. Those taking part portrayed the giver of hope, giver of wonder, giver of music, giver of excellence and giver of light and joy. She stated that how easy it is for us to miss the glory of God if we are not looking up. The program was interspersed with Christmas carols. A candle lighting service concluded the program with each person having her candle lit. Miss Kirkwood gave the closing prayer.

Biblical games were played at the conclusion of the program. Those receiving prizes were Mrs. Donald Wellington, Mrs. Paul Frank and Mrs. Eugene Flowers. A gift exchange followed.

At the conclusion refreshments were served by the

Christmas Season Evident At Community Mission

PRACTICE SESSION — Children of Circleville Community Mission are shown

as they practice for the Nativity play at the church.

The Christmas season is very much in evidence at the Circleville Community Mission in Lowery Lane. At 5:30 p.m. on Friday, as a biting wind ushered in the first snow of the holiday season, eager young people arrived at the Mission from their nearby homes. The plans for the evening were twofold. First, under the direction of Laura Galvin and Carolyn Rose of the Bible College, cast members rehearsed for The Nativity play to be given the Sunday before Christmas. After practice, the entire youth group went caroling with their advisors, Ron Smith and Vickie Van Doren, also of the Bible College. Later, the young people returned to the Mission for fellowship and refreshments.

A relaxed, friendly atmosphere greeted visitors. Willing substitutes filled in for absent cast members and observers were sure that on Sunday night, there would be a smiling actor for every part. Bill Rose of CBC was the reader for the play, with Carolyn Rose playing the piano. Cast members included: Joseph, Larry Cottrill; Mary, Amette Haynes; Herod, Wade Martin; Inn Keeper, Mary Martin; Shepherds, Jackie Pence, Barbara Martin and Mary Martin; Wise Men, Alice Lowery, Belinda Haynes and substitute, Patty Hapenny.

Youth activities hold high priority with the Bible College Gospel team. Under the direction of Herschel Holley, the mission minister, young people come together several times a week for their own programs and are whole heartedly included in adult worship services. The impact of a week long revival held in November was not lost on the teenagers, many of whom attended services each night.

The spirit of Christmas lives at the Lowery Lane Mission. It is expressed in the warmth of friendliness, an outstretched hand of fellowship, the dedication of young Christian shepherds to their flock, and that special wonder felt the world around as the story of the first Christmas again unfolds.

Mrs. Theron Miller, organist, and Mr. John Goldsmith, vocalist, presented a program of music preceding the ceremony. A reception at the Marriott Inn followed the marriage rites.

Dr. Kagy gave his daughter in marriage. The bride selected for her wedding day a formal gown of candlelight peau de soie and peau d'ange lace. The A-line silhouette featured a Victorian neckline with lace yoke, seed pearls and crystals, bishop sleeves and empire waistline enhanced with a light pink velvet ribbon sash and softly gathered skirt. The gown was delicately traced with seed pearls and crystals. The lace bridal bonnet adorned with pink velvet ribbon held a lace edged full chapel length mantilla, accented with seed pearls and crystals, creating an aura of elegance. The bride carried a bouquet of pink roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Robert Ludwig, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Robert Schneider, Lancaster; Mrs. Douglas Jerge, Key West, Fla. and Miss Barbara Kaufman, Columbus.

The attendants were gowned alike in fiesta pink brocade and satin, fashioned with scooped neckline, baby doll sleeves and empire waistline with pink velvet sash. Flower petals were sprinkled on the sleeves and the softly gathered skirt of candlelight brocade was enhanced with a wisper train. Headpieces were floor length veils of fiesta pink. They carried light pink lanterns with lighted fiesta pink candles. The bottom of the lanterns were surrounded with roses and wisper mums.

Flower girl was Miss Tracy Kagy in a full length dress of light pink satin and floor length veil of fiesta pink. She carried a basket of roses and wisper mums.

Mr. John Pontius of Circleville, served as best man. Ushers were Mr. John Jenkins, Grove City, Mr. Donald Fluke and Mr. Robert Mellquist, Columbus.

The bride's mother was attended in a dress with a cranberry velvet top and bright pink chiffon skirt with a matching coat of cranberry velvet and a white orchid corsage. Mrs. Spangler wore a dress and coat of matching light pink linen. The dress collar was enhanced with pink crystals and she also wore a corsage of white orchids.

For her going-away costume the bride wore an orange and white knit dress and jacket, white boots and orange accessories. Following a wedding trip to Hawaii the couple will reside at 5969 Parliament Drive, Columbus.

The bride is a graduate of Mohawk High School, Tiffin, and The Ohio State University where she was a member of Alpha Delta Phi social and Alpha Lambda Delta honorary. She completed graduate studies in French literature and is employed at Columbus Eastmoor High School.

Circle Holds December Meet

Circle 3 of Good Shepherd United Methodist Church met in the home of Mrs. Clayton Lutz with 12 members and three guests, Mrs. Clayton Lutz, Mrs. Francis Arbell and Mrs. Helen Dunkle.

Mrs. Donald Wellington, circle leader, had a reading centered around Luke 2:7. She then had opening prayer.

Mrs. David Bond, assistant leader, reported on the types of programs that the society is to have in 1972. She stressed praying and working harder on the programs.

Mrs. Eugene Flowers, spiritual growth secretary, reported that January would be self-denial month and that each circle would have their own self-denial program. The thought for the month was to "Put Christ Back Into Christmas."

The circle will prepare a Christmas meal for a family. This will be a joint project.

Miss Lucille Kirkwood presented an impressive program with several members taking part. Those taking part portrayed the giver of hope, giver of wonder, giver of music, giver of excellence and giver of light and joy. She stated that how easy it is for us to miss the glory of God if we are not looking up. The program was interspersed with Christmas carols. A candle lighting service concluded the program with each person having her candle lit. Miss Kirkwood gave the closing prayer.

Biblical games were played at the conclusion of the program. Those receiving prizes were Mrs. Donald Wellington, Mrs. Paul Frank and Mrs. Eugene Flowers. A gift exchange followed.

Christmas Season Evident At Community Mission

as they practice for the Nativity play at the church.

The Christmas season is very much in evidence at the Circleville Community Mission in Lowery Lane. At 5:30 p.m. on Friday, as a biting wind ushered in the first snow of the holiday season, eager young people arrived at the Mission from their nearby homes. The plans for the evening were twofold. First, under the direction of Laura Galvin and Carolyn Rose of the Bible College, cast members rehearsed for the Nativity play to be given the Sunday before Christmas. After practice, the entire youth group went caroling with their advisors, Ron Smith and Vickie Van Doren, also of the Bible College. Later, the young people returned to the Mission for fellowship and refreshments.

A relaxed, friendly atmosphere greeted visitors. Willing substitutes filled in for absent cast members and observers were sure that on Sunday night, there would be a smiling actor for every part. Bill Rose of CBC was the reader for the play, with Carolyn Rose playing the piano. Cast members included: Joseph, Larry Cottrill; Mary, Annette Haynes; Herod, Wade Martin; Inn Keeper, Mary Martin; Shepherds, Jackie Pence, Barbara Martin and Mary Martin; Wise Men, Alice Lowery, Belinda Haynes and substitute, Patty Hapenny.

Youth activities hold high priority with the Bible College Gospel team. Under the direction of Herschel Holley, the mission minister, young people come together several times a week for their own programs and are whole heartedly included in adult worship services. The impact of a week long revival held in November was not lost on the teenagers, many of whom attended services each night.

The spirit of Christmas lives at the Lowery Lane Mission. It is expressed in the warmth of friendliness, an outstretched hand of fellowship, the dedication of young Christian shepherds to their flock, and that special wonder felt the world around as the story of the first Christmas again unfolds.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Her 'Prize' Husband Is No Winner

DEAR ABBY: I'm not telling you this to boast, but just to give you some idea of my situation.

I am 25, my figure is 37-25-35 and I have won several beauty contests. Two years ago I married what everyone (including myself) thought was a prize. He was 30, college educated, good job, rosy future, etc.

Well this "prize" has made love to me exactly five times since Jan. 1, 1970! (Twice he came right out and told me it was to shut me up.)

I have tried everything, including greeting him at door in a seductive see-thru negligee. And he says, "Hi. What's for supper?"

I told him he should see a doctor, and he said I should see one to find out why I am never satisfied! Am I abnormal or is he? Any suggestions?

"PRACTICALLY UNTOUCHED IN TULSA"

DEAR PRACTICALLY: If he refuses to see a doctor, see a lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing a copy of a letter I've written to all of my three grown children who are married and have families. They all live out of town, and their idea of a grand summer vacation is to come with their children (each has two) and spend it with us.

I am 62. My husband is 68. We have a lovely modern three-bedroom home with a swimming pool.

This last summer has been hectic. Each family came and stayed two weeks. In some cases their visits overlapped so we had more than one family here at a time.

My husband and I couldn't sleep nights as they stayed up late watching TV or playing cards or laughing and talking with friends, until 2 a.m.

My husband and I always get up at 7:30 a.m. and couldn't turn on our radio, sprinkling system, dishwasher, or carry out our routine chores as our guests wanted to sleep until noon. (These are only a few of the inconveniences. I am not even mentioning the extra work.)

By the end of the summer we were nervous wrecks. I broke out in a rash and had headaches. I would appreciate knowing if you think I should of sent the enclosed letter to our children. And if you have any suggestions, please send them along.

MRS. NO NAME
MY DEAR CHILDREN: I have just had a long talk with my doctor. He tells me that my rash and nervous condition are due to the strain of having so much company last summer. He says I absolutely must inform my family that their visits must not last more than a week. And I can have only one set of guests at a time.

Dad also gets upset and exhausted from too much commotion and excitement. And we are getting older and have to take it easier now.

We love you and the grandchildren, and we hope you will understand. Our love,
MOTHER AND DAD

DEAR MRS. NO NAME: Yours is a legitimate and not uncommon problem and your approach to it is sensitive and fair. If the response to it is understanding and friendly, your "Children" have matured. If it is not, they haven't quite grown up yet, so send the letter and stick to your guns.

DEAR ABBY: You suggested that people who didn't know where to register to vote should call the Democratic or Republican party headquarters. Please! There is a better place to call. Yahya On Way Out In Pakistan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Radio Pakistan announced Saturday that President Abha Mohammed Yahya Khan soon will turn power over to a "representative government," but nationwide demonstrations against his handling of the war with India threatened to topple his military regime.

Protests against Yahya by members of the Pakistan People's party, whose leader is Deputy Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, erupted in Lahore and Peshawar on Friday night. A procession in Peshawar, 100 miles west of Rawalpindi, marched to the cantonment house built by Yahya and threatened to burn it down.

The bar association in Lahore, Pakistan's second largest city, passed a resolution demanding Yahya's resignation. Other demonstrators shouted anti-Yahya and anti-Indian slogans at a racetrack in Lahore, 20 miles west of the Indian border.

The Pakistani broadcast said Yahya had summoned Bhutto home from New York, and that immediately upon his return power would be transferred to the new government under a new constitution.

Bhutto was named last week as Pakistan's foreign minister as well as deputy prime minister.

ter in a new government that Yahya promised to form early next year. He was sent to the United Nations last week for the debate on the India-Pakistan war.

Bhutto's People's party won a majority of the seats from West Pakistan in elections a year ago for a new National Assembly. But the East Pakistani-based Awami League, later outlawed by Yahya, won an absolute majority in the assembly elections because more seats had been allotted to the more populous eastern province.

In New Delhi, Defense Minister Jagjivan Ram called for talks between India and Pakistan to settle all their disputes, but made no mention of any cease-fire violations reported earlier by a military spokesman.

The spokesman had accused Pakistan of breaking the day-old cease-fire by carrying out "six major attacks" on Indian positions on the Western front Friday night.

He said the Pakistanis used armor and artillery in the attacks along the border in the Punjab plains and in Kashmir, but were repulsed with the Pakistanis suffering heavy losses.

The fighting broke out in the Amritsar and Ferozepore sectors along the Punjab border and in the Muri and Mendhar sector of Kashmir—areas where heavy fighting took place during the war in the past two weeks, the spokesman said. He added that the Indians retaliated with "defensive action" wherever the Pakistanis attacked.

Girl Beats Long Illness

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Laura

Key Knuckles celebrated her fourth birthday Sunday. Five days later she will enjoy her very first Christmas at home after 3½ years in hospitals and accumulating one of the largest bills in U.S. medical history.

She was born with a genetic birth defect. The bones in her chest are malformed in such a way that they squeeze the lungs. The condition normally ends in death.

Four operations and years of hospitalization have resulted in a medical bill of $182,342.24. Last January her ribs showed signs of growing and doctors slowly weaned her from a special breathing device. On June 7 she left the hospital to go home for the first time since her birth.

"The only Santa Claus she ever saw before was the one who came to the hospital. She's really looking forward to going to see Santa this year instead of him coming to her," says her mother, Mrs. Frank Knuckles, the wife of a high school English teacher.

Steel Business Turns About; First-Quarter Gains Seen

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The steel industry, which has been in a recession because of heavy strike-hedge buying earlier in the year, now finds its business has turned around and anticipates first quarter gains, Industry Week magazine said Monday.

"An economist-analyst for a major steel company points out that durable consumer goods, led by auto and appliance sales, are in an upswing, housing construction has been strong and all estimates of 1972 capital spending are up," the magazine said.

The steel economist doesn't foresee any further moves to spur the economy, but other manufacturing managers say that once Phase 2 is further clarified and international uncertainties are gone, gradual business improvement will be assured, Industry Week added.

"Meanwhile, producers and buyers of steel are in a state of confusion over prices," it continued. "Until more companies win Price Commission approval for increases, final levels will be in doubt.

"The best guess is that mills will bill their customers at announced prices, and later make adjustments in final invoices according to prices established on an industrywide basis in the market."

The magazine said that while price maneuvering goes on, production of raw steel continues just under two million tons a week as demand for steel continues to strengthen.

It estimated output last week at 1,958,000 net tons, compared to 1,958,000 tons the previous week.

Industry Week's price composite on No. 1 heavy melting steelmaking scrap held at $29.92 a gross ton last week.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A Willoughby firm has sued Columbia Broadcasting System and a book publisher for $5 million in U. S. District Court here for alleged remarks made about "Krazy Straw" which the firm produced.

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — The United States is protesting the Cuban seizure of the freighter Johnny Express, whose naturalized American captain was shown on Havana television being treated in a hospital for wounds suffered when the ship was taken over.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Thursday that President Nixon, spending the weekend at the Florida White House, has expressed "grave concern" for Jose Villa, captain of the freighter which is owned by Cuban exiles.

Villa's wife and three children paid a visit to Nixon Thursday.

Delay Decision
On Sentence Appeal

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — Cabell Circuit Court Judge Russell Dunbar has delayed for one week his decision on whether to grant Randal Pyles, 18, of South Point, Ohio, his release from the state penitentiary. Pyles pleaded guilty to the kidnapping of an 18-year-old Huntington girl in 1970 and was handed a 10-to-20 year term by Judge Robert Conaty following a recommendation for mercy. But attorneys for Pyles are arguing before Dunbar in a habeas corpus hearing that the law prescribes an indefinite

New Welfare Rules Used For Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Welfare Director John Hansan has instructed county welfare departments not to reduce, suspend or terminate welfare payments without first giving welfare recipients the right to appeal the action. Hansan said the new procedure was the result of a federal court ruling Dec. 7 ordering: —That all welfare recipients be given the right to a fair hearing in such cases before a state hearing officer. —That all county welfare departments submit written confirmation, that no action will be taken without first notifying welfare recipients of their right to a hearing. Hansan told county welfare directors by letter over the weekend the new guidelines mean recipients will have to be given 15 days notice and informed of their right to hearings before changes in welfare payouts can be made. Case action may proceed, Hansan added, only if a recipient has declined his right to a hearing by signing a waiver, or fails to request a hearing within that 15 day period. If a hearing is requested, counties may not alter payments until after the state hearing has been concluded and the appeal resolved.

Pollution Questions
Still Unanswered

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — Prince Philip, the husband of Queen Elizabeth II, says even the experts don't know enough about pollution to figure a solution. Speaking to the Edinburgh University medical group on Friday, Philip, who is Duke of Edinburgh and chancellor of the university, said there is a lack of evidence about just how treatment of effluents and water supply affect local communities.

Miami U Sets Tuition Boost Next September

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — Beginning next September, Miami University will boost its instruction fees by $10 a quarter for undergraduate students from Ohio. Out-of-state undergraduate students will have to pay a $50 increase a quarter in tuition. The Miami board of trustees, who announced the hikes on Saturday, said general fees or room and board charges will not be affected. The instruction fee (tuition) will be $210 a quarter for Ohio students. They will have to pay a $50 general fee a quarter, unless they attend Miami's branch campuses at Hamilton or Middletown. The general fee at those campuses is $25 a quarter. Out-of-state students will be charged $210 in instruction fees plus the $50 general fee, and a $400 tuition surcharge. That will make a total quarterly rate of $660. Some 35 million tons of coal a year are required to fuel Tennessee Valley Authority steam-electric generating plants. A person can maintain his drive by keeping physically fit,

Husband Jailed For Kidnap, Assault After Auto Trip

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—"I thought he was going to kill me," Janet Carr Sharp says of a Saturday night of terror that ended with her husband, Russell Sharp, in jail on charges of kidnaping, assault with intent to kill and auto theft.

Sharp allegedly held his wife and six of her relatives at gunpoint for four hours Saturday night, before driving with his wife toward Parkersburg, where the bizarre episode ended quietly at a police roadblock, police said.

During the episode, Mrs. Sharp said, her husband at one point ordered his captives to check airline schedules to Miami and to Algiers, and on one occasion fired a shot from a .22 caliber rifle, the round embedding itself in a wall inches from her head.

Sharp, 47, told police he was a parolee from Folsom prison in California. Mrs. Sharp told officers he had served time there for killing his first wife. She said he had threatened to kill her, too.

"He kept telling mother she was going to get a real Christmas present this year," Mrs. Sharp's sister, Mrs. Bobbie Carr Mozzella, said. "He said she was going to get to see her daughter buried."

Sharp was being held in the Kanawha County Jail without bond.

The evening began with a candy-making party at the home of Mike Carr, 32, Mrs. Sharp's brother.

Carr and Mrs. Mozzella went to the Mozzella home to get some firecrackers, they said. Mrs. Sharp had been living with her for the past month, after she said Sharp had threatened her.

The two said Sharp was waiting at the house, and ordered them to call his wife and tell her to come over also. Mrs. Sharp did so, along with her mother, a sister and one of Mrs. Mozzella's children.

They were later joined by

Mrs. Sharp's father, who came over from across the street to see what was happening, he told police.

They said he held them there for several hours, threatening them and firing the shot, before deciding to take Mrs. Mozzella's car to Parkersburg where a brother lives.

Mr. and Mrs. Sharp then headed for Parkersburg. En route there, they were stopped by a Ripley policeman, who had been contacted by Charleston police. Mrs. Sharp used Mrs. Mozzella's credentials—she is a Kanawha County sheriff's deputy—to persuade the officer they were on official business and should be let through.

Husband Jailed For Kidnap, Assault After Auto Trip

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—"I thought he was going to kill me," Janet Carr Sharp says of a Saturday night of terror that ended with her husband, Russell Sharp, in jail on charges of kidnaping, assault with intent to kill and auto theft.

Sharp allegedly held his wife and six of her relatives at gunpoint for four hours Saturday night, before driving with his wife toward Parkersburg, where the bizarre episode ended quietly at a police road-block, police said.

During the episode, Mrs. Sharp said, her husband at one point ordered his captives to check airline schedules to Miami and to Algiers, and on one occasion fired a shot from a .22 caliber rifle, the round embedding itself in a wall inches from her head.

Sharp, 47, told police he was a parolee from Folsom prison in California. Mrs. Sharp told officers he had served time there for killing his first wife. She said he had threatened to kill her, too.

"He kept telling mother she was going to get a real Christmas present this year," Mrs. Sharp's sister, Mrs. Bobbie Carr Mozzella, said. "He said she was going to get to see her daughter buried."

Sharp was being held in the Kanawha County Jail without bond.

The evening began with a candy-making party at the home of Mike Carr, 32, Mrs. Sharp's brother.

Carr and Mrs. Mozzella went to the Mozzella home to get some firecrackers, they said. Mrs. Sharp had been living with her for the past month, after she said Sharp had threatened her.

The two said Sharp was waiting at the house, and ordered them to call his wife and tell her to come over also. Mrs. Sharp did so, along with her mother, a sister and one of Mrs. Mozzella's children.

They were later joined by

Mrs. Sharp's father, who came over from across the street to see what was happening, he told police.

They said he held them there for several hours, threatening them and firing the shot, before deciding to take Mrs. Mozzella's car to Parkersburg where a brother lives.

Mr. and Mrs. Sharp then headed for Parkersburg. En route there, they were stopped by a Ripley policeman, who had been contacted by Charleston police. Mrs. Sharp used Mrs. Mozzella's credentials—she is a Kanawha County sheriff's deputy—to persuade the officer they were on official business and should be let through.

Castro's Cuba Retains 'Big Brother' Image

EDITOR'S NOTE Dwight D. Eisenhower was our president when Fidel Castro took over Cuba. Since then three other men have gone to the White House, but Castro still rules. He does not believe in elections, nor in press freedom. The AP bureau in Havana has been closed since 1969, but recently an AP writer was admitted to Cuba in connection with the amateur world series of baseball. As it turned out, he was barred from filing news of the games—but he stayed on to see Havana for two weeks. This is the first of three uncensored dispatches he brought out.

By JOAQUIN MARTINEZ Associated Press Writer HAVANA (AP) — Most Havana residents have to reckon constantly with three facts of life—Fidel Castro's armed forces, the no less ubiquitous Committees for the Defense of the Revolution, and the Communist Youth.

And the fourth horseman is rationing and regimentation. There are complaints, but nothing in the atmosphere indicates a change toward liberalization in the immediate future.

No one seems to be starving, yet the amounts of food doled out to the populace contrasts sharply with what is available to foreign visitors and the "new class" of government bureaucrats.

The average Cuban is allowed a maximum of 12 ounces of meat a week and similarly low quantities of eggs, coffee, milk, and other foods.

As a paying guest of a hotel reserved for foreigners, I could breakfast on ham and eggs, coffee, milk and rolls with generous portions of butter. For dinner there were freshly caught fish, lobster and beef.

The hotel—the former Havana Hilton—is closed to the man in the street.

When it came time to pay my bill the cashier would not take Cuban pesos. He said I had to settle in U.S. dollars—the same currency the propaganda machinery of the regime blames for its sorrows and many of the world's ills.

Cuba's rulers have good reason to bar John Q. Public from the hotel premises. Guests there can freely buy any amount of cigars, cigarettes and liquors of a quality far above that which is available to ordinary citizens. The merchandise available at the hotel shop is of export quality, mainly sold abroad to earn hard currency or amortize gargantuan debts run up with the Communist block.

The average Cuban is rationed to 40 cigarettes a month. These are of poor quality yet they fetch the equivalent of $20 a pack on the black market.

The Revolutionary Armed Forces, headed by Castro's younger brother Raul, appear to exercise absolute control. What little escapes them is scrutinized by a host of repressive organizations: The State

New School Voters
ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — A total of 97 per cent of the 13,569 new students enrolled at the University of Texas at Arlington are eligible to vote, a survey by the Registrar's Office shows.

Security system plus the watchdog committee for the Defense of the Revolution and the machine that indoctrinates youngsters with a steady political diet from the age of 4 onward.

As youngsters grow up they are watched over by the Communist Youth, who keep a close eye on high schools and universities.

By the time a Cuban marries and settles down he—like his parents—will be under constant surveillance by a Committee for the Defense of the Revolution. These are neighborhood groups made up of Castroite stalwarts who keep watch over a block 24 hours a day. They report to security offices the comings and goings of neighbors and strangers, the arrival of suspicious objects. They also control the distribution of food rationing books, check school enrollment and enforce health measures.

The food ration book is vital to obtain essentials doled out by the regime. Its backers hail the system as one that has done away with inequalities.

But there is grumbling, especially among those who belonged to the now wilted middle class. There is no moaning about a lack of gourmet delicacies, but foods and beverages Americans take for granted have long disappeared from the average Cuban table. These include cheese, beer, wine, tea, cold cuts, butter or margarine, most fresh or canned fruits, chocolate and pork.

It does not take much to realize that the rationed items fall short of providing a satisfying diet. Habaneros, as the natives of the capital city are known, stand in lines that snake for more than a block, patiently waiting to buy one scoop of ice cream. They quietly wait for their turn, not in the festive atmosphere of a hot dog stand, but with a resigned air born out of need.

Like many other people living

The Circleville Herald, Mon. Dec. 20, 1971 15
Circleville, Ohio

in a totalitar system, most Cubans seem resigned to their current situation. Those with th regime heap praise "on our friends, the Russians," as a cab driver told me.

"The Yankee imperialists are the ones who won't let us live," he added.

seems in order for the foreseeable period.

For Cubans are caught in a crunch: they seem to hate their present situation but even more than that they are loath to return to the past, the era of Fulgencio Batista's bloody dictatorship. That triggered Fidel Castro's successful revolt.

And the fourth horseman is rationing and regimentation. There are complaints, but nothing in the atmosphere indicates a change toward liberalization in the immediate future.

No one seems to be starving, yet the amounts of food doled out to the populace contrasts sharply with what is available to foreign visitors and the "new class" of government bureaucrats.

The average Cuban is allowed a maximum of 12 ounces of meat a week and similarly low quantities of eggs, coffee, milk, and other foods.

As a paying guest of a hotel reserved for foreigners, I could breakfast on ham and eggs, coffee, milk and rolls with generous portions of butter. For dinner there were freshly caught fish, lobster and beef.

The hotel—the former Havana Hilton—is closed to the man in the street.

When it came time to pay my bill the cashier would not take Cuban pesos. He said I had to settle in U.S. dollars—the same currency the propaganda machinery of the regime blames for its sorrows and many of the world's ills.

Cuba's rulers have good reason to bar John Q. Public from the hotel premises. Guests there can freely buy any amount of cigars, cigarettes and liquors of a quality far above that which is available to ordinary citizens. The merchandise available at the hotel shop is of export quality, mainly sold abroad to earn hard currency or amortize gargantuan debts run up with the Communist block.

The average Cuban is rationed to 40 cigarettes a month. These are of poor quality yet they fetch the equivalent of $20 a pack on the black market.

The Revolutionary Armed Forces, headed by Castro's younger brother Raul, appear to exercise absolute control. What little escapes them is scrutinized by a host of repressive organizations: The State Security system plus the watchdog committee for the Defense of the Revolution and the machine that indoctrinates youngsters with a steady political diet from the age of 4 onward.

As youngsters grow up they are watched over by the Communist Youth, who keep a close eye on high schools and universities.

By the time a Cuban marries and settles down he—like his parents—will be under constant surveillance by a Committee for the Defense of the Revolution. These are neighborhood groups made up of Castroite stalwarts who keep watch over a block 24 hours a day. They report to security offices the comings and goings of neighbors and strangers, the arrival of suspicious objects. They also control the distribution of food rationing books, check school enrollment and enforce health measures.

The food ration book is vital to obtain essentials doled out by the regime. Its backers hail the system as one that has done away with inequalities.

But there is grumbling, especially among those who belonged to the now wilted middle class. There is no moaning about a lack of gourmet delicacies, but foods and beverages Americans take for granted have long disappeared from the average Cuban table. These include cheese, beer, wine, tea, cold cuts, butter or margarine.

most fresh or canned fruits, chocolate and pork.

It does not take much to realize that the rationed items fall short of providing a satisfying diet. Habaneros, as the natives of the capital city are known, stand in lines that snake for more than a block, patiently waiting to buy one scoop of ice cream. They quietly wait for their turn, not in the festive atmosphere of a hot dog stand, but with a resigned air born out of need.

Like many other people living in a totalitarian system, most Cubans seem resigned to their current situation. Those with th regime heap praise "on our friends, the Russians," as a cab driver told me.

"The Yankee imperialists are the ones who won't let us live," he added.

Cubans seem deeply divided over the regime. The strength of the opposition cannot be measured reliably. A status quo seems in order for the foreseeable period.

For Cubans are caught in a crunch: they seem to hate their present situation but even more than that they are loath to return to the past, the era of Fulgencio Batista's bloody dictatorship. That triggered Fidel Castro's successful revolt.

Rogers Reopens U.S. Drive For Peace In Middle East

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers has reopened the American drive to work out an interim settlement of the Arab-Israeli crisis, but the direction of the effort remains unclear.

The State Department disclosed Friday that Rogers had spoken separately on the telephone to Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban and his Egyptian counterpart, Muhammad Riad, about an interim settlement.

The U.S. peace initiative had been shelved temporarily early last month when American officials said, it was obvious the focus on the Mideast had shifted to the United Nations.

Now that the debate is over "and did not result in any overly hurt feelings," one administration source said, "it appears time to try again for an interim plan."

No one would say what Rogers said in detail to Riad and Eban, both in New York for the U.N. session, but State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey said lower level contacts in Washington might be the next step.

The original American program for obtaining the reopening of the Suez Canal as an interim agreement that could lead to a permanent peace never really got off the ground.

While neither Israel nor Egypt ever gave the idea much support, the American officials constantly pointed out neither government had expressly asked the United States to bow out.

When the Nixon administration decided to temporarily shelve its effort last month the drive was centered around the concept of bringing Israeli and Egyptian officials "into close proximity" for serious negotiations.

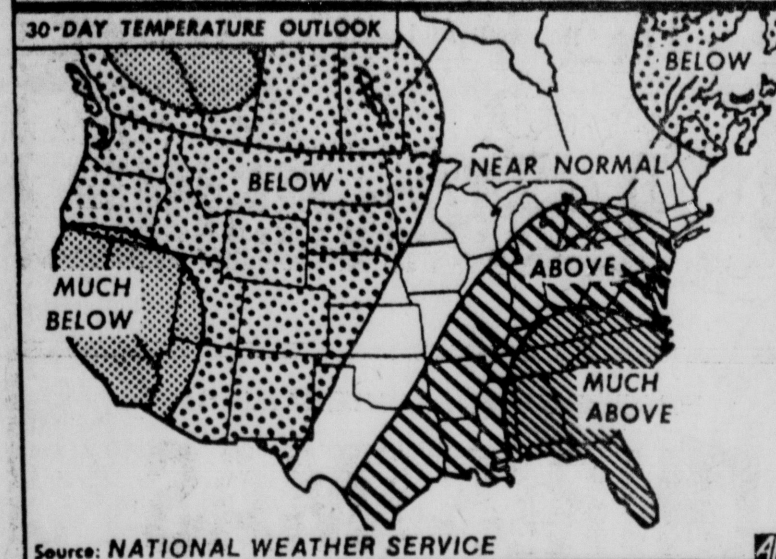

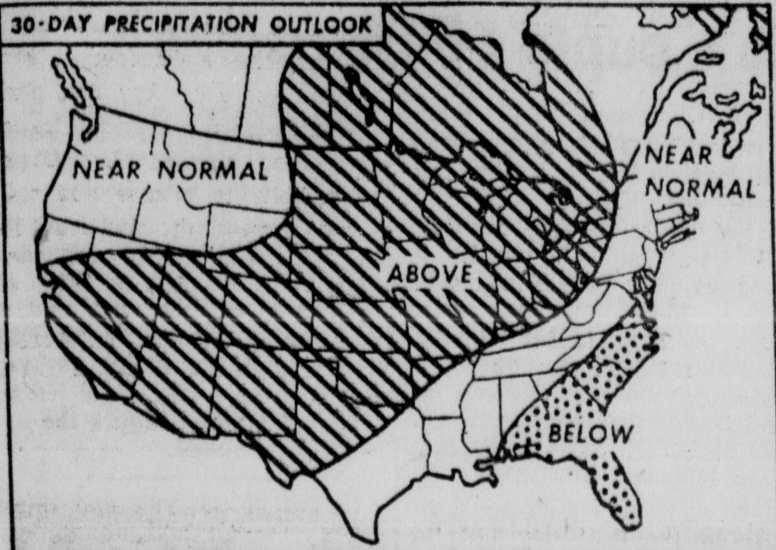

This involved the possibility of the opposing officials staying in the same hotel in New York with Assistant Secretary of State Joseph Sisco shuttling back and forth as a sort of mediator.

Whether this is the approach the United States wants to resume is in doubt. American officials say different tactics might be explored.

The major roadblocks in the past have not been resolved. These deal primarily with Egyptian demands that any canal reopening be followed by Israeli withdrawal from conquered territory.

Israel has refused such demands and has said further it will not agree to the occupation of the canal's east bank by Egyptian military forces, another Cairo demand.

Britain is governed from London and one in eight inhabitants live within the city boundaries.

Great White Fleet Survivors Hold Reunion; Down To 14

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — "We'll think about disbanding when we're down to two," says Larry Voit, the youngest survivor at the 64th anniversary reunion of men who sailed with America's Great White Fleet.

Only 14 of the 16,000 naval officers and enlisted men who took part in the worldwide show of U.S. sea power in 1907 made it back for Thursday night's reunion.

Among them was the 90-year-old Voit of Vista, Calif.

I.F. Tinstman, 84, came from Kingman, Ariz., to reminisce with other white-haired veterans at dinner and afterward at a downtown hotel.

The fleet, called together at Hampton Roads, Va., by President Theodore Roosevelt, was made up of 16 battleships and a half-dozen support ships, their hulls painted white instead of the traditional gray. Roosevelt reportedly hoped the mission would soothe mounting tensions in the Pacific as a result of politics and military pressures involving Japan.

Dick Richards, 85, recalled the sequence of events as the American ships neared Japan: "We watched the Japanese fleet come out of Yokohama. All our guns were manned and ammunition was up from the magazines."

"We waited for them to start something. But the only shooting in Tokyo Bay that day was hundreds of guns firing national salutes to each other's flags."

At the time Harry S. Morris, founder of the Great White Fleet Association, was a 14-year-old apprentice sailor. He retired after 55 years as a chief torpedoman, the longest enlisted service in U.S. Navy history.

Morris, 84, said nearly 700 survivors still are living but many are ill or too old to travel.

"You know, I think the Russians are beginning to copy the Great White Fleet idea now," he said. "They've got a new navy and they're beginning to of elevators or escalators from show it off around the world."

Divine Revelation Comes In Numerous Ways

EDITOR'S NOTE: Man, as a finite creature, can't grasp the infinite, but that doesn't prevent an infinite God from revealing Himself on the human level. His doing so is the basis of faith. To Christians, the high point in that process is the event celebrated at Christmas. A five-part series about it, "Light of the Incarnation," begins with the following article about the "Ways of Revelation".

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religious Writer

To a person in love, the smallest gestures, glances and intonations of the beloved are charged with significance. But a preoccupied stranger would scarcely notice. To him, they mean nothing.

That, in a sense, is humanity's ambiguous situation in regard to signs of the sacred.

In a promethean age absorbed in man's technical mastery, God may seem to some a pointless blank, a nothingness. But others pick up the "signals of the transcendent" through sensitivity to them.

They're not and never have been blatantly obvious. "We walk by faith, not by sight," the roving apostle, Paul, put it long ago.

Only the caring know. Only the attentive hear the subtle notes. Only the lover reads another's love. And only the concerned caught the whispered message of Christmas.

It was a remote, mostly ignored event. Yet its implications permeated the world. Christians consider it the greatest occurrence of all time, the marvel of the ages, the supreme revelation to man.

It unleashed "the visible, audible word of God himself in human history," says University of Chicago theologian Schubert M. Ogden.

Yet, when it happened, few noticed or cared — only a rustic, midnight crew of susceptible shepherds, some distant students of the stars, accounts say. It was an isolated, mostly disregarded affair, in a tiny mountain town.

But this is the kind of obscure, unrequited frontier where man encounters new surprises about reality. It is seldom in the spotlight, but offstage, in the backroom laboratories, on the shadowy edges of thought and cultures.

It comes at "the boundary of our consciousness," yet at the "hidden center" of actuality, says Dietrich Bonhoeffer, the German churchman martyred by the Nazis. It shows what one should know or be, even while unable to do it, a flash of further possibility.

Generally it is an intimately limited, elusive occurrence.

Sometimes it may be some ordinary circumstance or person that all at once is seen in a different way, in an extra depth or dimension. Or it can be the illumination that comes in the dark "night of the soul" spoken of by mystics.

A "tacit knowing," it has been called, an "illative sense," an uncalculated, penetrating kind of comprehension that includes but yet is more than mere adding up of the factual fragments.

In a way, it's like some rare moment in reading a Shakespearean sonnet when it suddenly lights up with new force and you realize, "Now I see." Or it's like the lonely, brooding Archimedes bolting from his bath exclaiming:

"Eureka! I have found it!"

There is a gift-like quality about it, a plus, something surpassing mere deductive analysis. It is bestowed rather than achieved. And it is on that gracious plane that humanity received its grandest communication.

"The 'self-disclosure of God,' the great Swiss thinker, Karl Barth, called it, the enfolding of the divine purpose for manhood in Jesus, the 'Incarnation.'"

It is "the foundation of Christianity," says Catholic theologian Karl Rahner, and he observes: "Ideas only become truth in earnest when they stand forth in flesh and blood."

And that is the substance out of which have come the convictions of Judeo-Christianity, the world's oldest and largest religious lineage affirming one universal God of all creation.

"The rudiments of the faith were spun out of the unfolding chronicles of mankind and inspired insights into concrete events, their implications, motivations and consequences."

It is the only religion "that takes history seriously," says Biblical archeologist G. Ernest Wright. "It assumes that the knowledge of God is associated with events that really happened in human life."

Other major religions, such as Buddhism and Hinduism, draw their concepts from inner contemplation and regard earthly history as a confining burden, seeking release from it.

But Judeo-Christianity considers it the matrix of enlightenment and growth, of consummate purpose, with human decisions affecting its movement toward God's ultimate perfection of it.

Although the living experience of individuals and societies are the means of revelation, its divine pointer are not considered human discoveries, but rather are given, imparted, injected into the process, appealing for mankind's acceptance.

"It is always God who takes the initiative," says Catholic Bible scholar Walter J. Abbott. Men are left free to respond or not.

On a simpler level, you can't even know another person unless he bares his feelings and lets himself be known, leaving to you the option of reciprocating. More deeply, God is known only as he makes himself known.

Jewish scholar Abraham Heschel says doubt that it happens is based on self-contradictory positions: "One maintains that man is too great to need divine guidance, and the other maintains that man is too small to be worthy of it."

It doesn't come, however, in ethereal other-worldly fashion. "God always addresses us in human life," says Catholic theologian Gregory Baum.

The context for it is earthly reality itself, whose basic inexplicability first poses the question. That reality has man in its power, not vice versa. And the objective dynamics of that very fact impels man first to ask in order to be answered.

The prompting, the invitation, is implanted in the sheer mystery of existence. Why? From whom? For what? But learning from it always is a two-way proposition of invitation and response, of submissive alertness to those aspects of reality that tell of God.

"Revealed truth always is relative to the minds that receive it," says British Methodist Kenneth G. Greet. As Goethe once put it, "Had not the eye a sunlit nature, the eye could never see the sun."

As in any field, however, objects, events, words, persons and the design of history itself take on meaning only through interpretation of them, and the interpretations can be entirely wrong, mere illusions.

What then distinguishes and confirms the divine intimations to man? Basically, they are considered "self-authenticating," a quality that validates them in the testing of human experience.

"Revelation proves itself not only because of its intrinsic verity but also by its ability to guide men to many other truths," says Protestant theologian H. Richard Niebuhr.

But the "clues" must first be spotted, sensed, somehow detected, and this necessitates openness to it, a predisposition for it. "If you do not believe, you will not understand," Augustine put it.

Similarly, even in the more limited physical sciences, it takes some prior belief or "hunch" about the data to arrive at it, further ramifications of it.

Obviously, however, religious concepts, like ethical, artistic, esthetic, psychological, social and even political values cannot be reduced to mathematical equations.

But they can be reasonably deduced and they can affirm themselves in the crucible of experience. Like a smile or a handshake, they have meaning even though they can't be tangibly demonstrated.

The interpretation "depends on the questions and expectations with which we approach the signs," says Catholic scholar Avery Dulles.

Even advanced physical science no longer is confined to stringent demonstrations and fixed facts or properties, but with variables, probabilities, change. And it, too, stands on the shoulders of its predecessors.

These girders of accumulated inspiration and insight into earthly events also form the basis of Judeo-Christianity. The Bible is the foundational record of those divine breakthroughs into human history.

"God's search for man," it is described, rather than being man's search for God. And its accents are considered a key for discerning the continuing divine activity in the present.

Scripture is not scientific exposition nor mere history, but a universal spiritual drama of an overarching compassion and concern for human integrity, of an unwavering love that seeks an answering affirmation.

Like all love, it is not forced. It finds completion only if freely returned.

The spark first caught among a nomadic, oppressed people of old, the Jews, drawing a responsive Abraham into a mutual covenant of devotion and promise. But God remained an inexpressible mystery.

"I am who I am," came the nameless summons to a questioning Moses. "Hear... go... do... I will be with you." It was a strange bidding to action and struggle. Confidence in it freed Moses, people from slavery.

They thus began to realize, a little, the intent behind the mystery — to save, to free, to redeem.

Guidance for it was etched in the great ethical code, the 10 Commandments. The vision was sharpened by a succession of bold, penetrating men, the prophets, mirroring holy passion for justice, harmony and ultimate sanctification of the earth.

They voiced a strange, recurrent note, a conviction that somehow, full association would be re-established between God and man. "The glory of the Lord will be revealed," Isaiah said. "A light to the nations."

It was a hope, a longing for a clearer, closer knowing of God. But then, as always, it involved an element of prior recognition as a basis for interpreting it, a prerequisite of every gain in the finer ranges of knowing.

Like a love poem, it could be understood only if one has experienced love.

Should that poem be set to music, the meaning can be sharpened beyond both the words and the music, becoming an expression of truth that is more than either.

It is in that nebulous zone of "wider being" surpassing specific "beings" that revelation comes and substantiates itself. A person can't define it or possess it like a passive object, or know it even like another subjective person.

But he can receive it, if from that sphere exceeding the individual, or two of them, or all of them put together, it is imparted to them. It is not necessarily new, only newly known, which is considered the case, oddly and eternally, with Jesus.

Air Bag Ruling Under Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional committee has suggested the Department of Transportation reconsider its decision to require the installation of safety air bags in 1976 cars.

In a report issued Friday, the House Government Operations Committee questioned whether air bags "offer the broad protection that Department of Transportation officials suggest." They also asked whether car manufacturers can develop satisfactory air bag systems by 1976.

"Of equal concern," the committee report said, "is the department's decision to discontinue the present mandatory safety belt requirement beginning in 1976, seemingly on the basis that a passive restraint system, notably the air bag, will make seat belts unnecessary."

Police Find Ohio Couple's Possessions

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Police detectives touched by the plight of a Cleveland, Ohio, couple who lost all their possessions in the theft of the car and trailer, succeeded in recovering some of the items most-valued by the victims.

About 20 boxes of color slides, their daughter's baby book and some of her toys will be returned to Mr. and Mrs. Peter C. Rummel whose car and trailer and belongings valued at $12,000 were stolen Nov. 16 in suburban Bridgeton.

The car and trailer were recovered the next day but the contents were gone.

Mr. and Mrs. Rummel said in an interview published in a St. Louis newspaper they would settle for the return of the slides and the baby book.

The detectives, touched by the plea, said they questioned a man being held in St. Louis in connection with the theft of two automobiles owned by an FBI agent from the motel parking lot. They said they were led to a vacant building where the articles were found.

Critics of the yak call them clumsy, mean and dangerous. Others say they are docile and carry heavy loads willingly.

Divine Revelation Comes In Numerous Ways

EDITOR'S NOTE: Man, as a finite creature, can't grasp the infinite, but that doesn't prevent an infinite God from revealing Himself on the human level. His doing so is the basis of faith. To Christians, the high point in that process is the event celebrated at Christmas. A five-part series about it, "Light of the Incarnation," begins with the following article about the "Ways of Revelation".

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religious Writer

To a person in love, the smallest gestures, glances and intonations of the beloved are charged with significance. But a preoccupied stranger would scarcely notice. To him, they mean nothing.

That, in a sense, is humanity's ambiguous situation in regard to signs of the sacred. In a promethean age absorbed in man's technical mastery, God may seem to some a pointless blank, a nothingness. But others pick up the "signals of the transcendent" through sensitivity to them.

They're not and never have been blatantly obvious. "We walk by faith, not by sight," the roving apostle, Paul, put it long ago.

Only the caring know. Only the attentive hear the subtle notes. Only the lover reads another's love. And only the concerned caught the whispered message of Christmas.

It was a remote, mostly ignored event. Yet its implications permeated the world. Christians consider it the greatest occurrence of all time, the marvel of the ages, the supreme revelation to man.

It unleashed "the visible, audible word of God himself in human history," says University of Chicago theologian Schubert M. Ogden.

Yet, when it happened, few noticed or cared — only a rustic, midnight crew of susceptible shepherds, some distant students of the stars, accounts say. It was an isolated, mostly disregarded affair, in a tiny mountain town.

But that is the kind of obscure, unrequited frontier where man encounters new surprises about reality. It is seldom in the spotlight, but offstage, in the backroom laboratories, on the shadowy edges of thought and cultures.

It comes at "the boundary of our consciousness," yet at the "hidden center" of actuality, says Dietrich Bonhoeffer, the German churchman martyred by the Nazis. It shows what one should know or be, even while unable to do it, a flash of further possibility.

Generally it is an intimately limited, elusive occurrence.

Sometimes it may be some ordinary circumstance or person that all at once is seen in a different way, in an extra depth or dimension. Or it can be the illumination that comes in the dark "night of the soul" spoken of by mystics.

A "tacit knowing," it has been called, an "illative sense," an uncalculated, penetrating kind of comprehension that includes but yet is more than mere adding up of the factual fragments.

In a way, it's like some rare moment in reading a Shakespearean sonnet when it suddenly lights up with new force and you realize, "Now I see." Or it's like the lonely, brooding Archimedes bolting from his bath exclaiming: "Eureka! I have found it!"

There is a gift-like quality about it, a plus, something surpassing mere deductive analysis. It is bestowed rather than achieved. And it is on that gracious plane that humanity received its grandest communication.

"The 'self-disclosure of God,' the great Swiss thinker, Karl Barth, called it, the enfleshing of the divine purpose for manhood in Jesus, the 'Incarnation.'"

It is "the foundation of Christianity," says Catholic theologian Karl Rahner, and he observes: "Ideas only become truth in earnest when they stand forth in flesh and blood." And that is the substance out of which have come the convictions of Judeo-Christianity, the world's oldest and largest religious lineage affirming one universal God of all creation.

The rudiments of the faith were spun out of the unfolding chronicles of mankind and inspired insights into concrete events, their implications, motivations and consequences.

"It is the only religion 'that takes history seriously,'" says Biblical archeologist G. Ernest Wright. "It assumes that the knowledge of God is associated with events that really happened in human life."

Other major religions, such as Buddhism and Hinduism, draw their concepts from inner contemplation and regard earthly history as a confining burden, seeking release from it.

But Judeo-Christianity considers it the matrix of enlightenment and growth, of consummate purpose, with human decisions affecting its movement toward God's ultimate perfection of it.

Although the living experience of individuals and societies are the means of revelation, its divine pointer are not considered human discoveries, but rather are given, imparted, injected into the process, appealing for mankind's acceptance.

"It is always God who takes the initiative," says Catholic Bible scholar Walter J. Abbott. Men are left free to respond or not.

On a simpler level, you can't even know another person unless he bares his feelings and lets himself be known, leaving to you the option of reciprocating. More deeply, God is known only as he makes himself known.

Jewish scholar Abraham Heschel says doubt that it happens is based on self-contradictory positions: "One maintains that man is too great to need divine guidance, and the other maintains that man is too small to be worthy of it."

It doesn't come, however, in etheral other-worldly fashion. "God always addresses us in human life," says Catholic theologian Gregory Baum.

The context for it is earthly reality itself, whose basic inexplicability first poses the question. That reality has man in its power, not vice versa. And the objective dynamics of that very fact impels man first to ask in order to be answered.

The prompting, the invitation, is implanted in the sheer mystery of existence. Why? From whom? For what? But learning from it always is a two-way proposition of invitation and response, of submissive alertness to those aspects of reality that tell of God.

"Revealed truth always is relative to the minds that receive it," says British Methodist Kenneth G. Greet. As Goethe once put it, "Had not the eye a sunlit nature, the eye could never see the sun."

As in any field, however, objects, events, words, persons and the design of history itself take on meaning only through interpretation of them, and the interpretations can be entirely wrong, mere illusions.

What, then distinguishes and confirms the divine intimations to man? Basically, they are considered "self-authenticating," a quality that validates them in the testing of human experience.

"Revelation proves itself not only because of its intrinsic verity but also by its ability to guide men to many other truths," says Protestant theologian H. Richard Niebuhr.

But the "clues" must first be spotted, sensed, somehow detected, and this necessitates openness to it, a predisposition for it. "If you do not believe, you will not understand," Augustine put it.

Similarly, even in the more limited physical sciences, it takes some prior belief or "hunch" about the data to arrive at new, further ramifications of it.

Obviously, however, religious concepts, like ethical, artistic, esthetic, psychological, social and even political values cannot be reduced to mathematical equations.

But they can be reasonably deduced and they can affirm themselves in the crucible of experience. Like a smile or a handshake, they have meaning even though they can't be tangibly demonstrated.

The interpretation "depends on the questions and expectations with which we approach the signs," says Catholic scholar Avery Dulles.

Even advanced physical science no longer is confined to stringent demonstrations and fixed facts or properties, but with variables, probabilities, change. And it, too, stands on the shoulders of its predecessors.

These girders of accumulated inspiration and insight into earthly events also form the basis of Judeo-Christianity. The Bible is the foundational record of those divine breakthroughs into human history.

"God's search for man," it is described, rather than being man's search for God. And its accents are considered a key for discerning the continuing divine activity in the present.

Scripture is not scientific exposition nor mere history, but a universal spiritual drama of an overarching compassion and concern for human integrity, of an unwavering love that seeks an answering affirmation.

49ers Beat Lions, 31-27; Join Bowl Teams

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

A year ago, the Detroit Lions kept Los Angeles out of the National Football League playoffs by winning their final regular season game. This time they did it by losing.

The San Francisco 49ers edged the Lions 31-27 Sunday on John Brodie's 10-yard touchdown scramble with 10 minutes to play. That gave the 49ers the National Conference's Western Division crown and relegated the Rams, whose 23-14 triumph over Pittsburgh already was on the scoreboard, to another meaningless second-place finish.

Last season, the Rams beat the Giants in New York on the final day to stay alive, only to have the 49ers defeat Oakland and win the West while the Lions whipped Green Bay for the best second-place record in the NFC and the conference's wild card playoff spot.

Elsewhere, the Miami Dolphins trounced Green Bay 27-6 and won the AFC Eastern Division title by one-half game over Baltimore when the Colts bowed to New England 21-17. The Dallas Cowboys won the NFC Eastern crown Saturday by routing St. Louis 31-12.

The Super Bowl playoffs open next Saturday with Dallas at Minnesota and Miami at Kansas City. Sunday finds Baltimore at Cleveland and Washington at San Francisco.

Other results Sunday were Cleveland 20, Washington 13; Kansas City 27, Buffalo 9; Minnesota 27, Chicago 10; Atlanta 24, New Orleans 20; Oakland 21, Denver 13; New York Jets 35, Cincinnati 21; Philadelphia 41, New York Giants 28 and Houston 49, San Diego 33.

Brodie, who earlier threw scoring passes to Dick Wither, Ken Willard and Gene Washington, pulled San Francisco from behind for the third time with his decisive gallop. He faded to pass, escaped two rushers and scrambled up the middle.

The 49ers took possession of the ball for their winning drive when Frank Nunley and Earl Edward combined to stop Detroit's Greg Landry on fourth down when he tried to sneak for less than a yard at the Lions' 40.

Coach Joe Schmidt of the Lions admitted, "We would have played it differently" had Detroit been in position to make the playoffs. "We were going for the win. That's what we came here to do. I thought we had to play it that way to keep the momentum and maybe get in scoring position again."

The Rams, their backs squarely against the wall, scored the first three times they had the ball against Pittsburgh on a pair of David Ray field goals and Roman Gabriel's 20-yard pass to Jack Snow. But Gabriel said the players virtually had conceded the Western title to San Francisco.

"It was hard for us to play

this game," he said. "I really don't think our team concentrated well at all. We all just thought San Francisco was not going to lose."

Miami, locked in a 6-6 struggle with Green Bay, exploded for three touchdowns within five minutes of the second half and then sat back to await New England's upset of Baltimore. The quick scores came on one-yard runs by Jim Kiick and Larry Csonka and Curtis Johnson's 47-yard spring with a blocked field goal attempt.

Green Bay's John Brockington ran for 73 yards to become the ground-gainingest rookie in NFL history with 1,105 yards.

"I'm sure the Colts played to win," said Miami Coach Don Shula, when asked how he felt about meeting 10-3-1 Kansas City in the opening round of the playoffs while runnerup Baltimore, the AFC's wild-card entry, goes against supposedly weaker 9-5 Cleveland.

Baltimore's Don McCafferty echoed that sentiment after New England's Jim Plunkett fired his second touchdown pass to Randy Vataha, this one an 88-yard bomb, to offset a late score by the Colts. John Outlaw ran 60 yards with an interception for the Patriots' other touchdown.

"You don't like to lose any time," McCafferty said.

Intercepted Pass Decisive; Browns Top Skins, 20-13

WASHINGTON (AP)—The difference Sunday was that while Bill Kilmer had the incentive, Mike Howell had the ball.

The result was a 20-13 Cleveland Browns National Football League victory over the Washington Redskins.

"We wanted that 10th victory," said Kilmer, the Redskins' quarterback, "Coach George Allen said early in spring training that he thought we could win 10 games."

The Redskins looked as if they might up their record when Howell, a veteran safety, went into his act.

Following Don Crockcroft's second field goal of the game, which knotted the score at 13-13, the Skins started one of their best drives of the day.

With Kilmer at the controls, Washington marched from its own 12 and reached the Cleveland 29 in the opening moments of the final quarter. On first and 10, Kilmer moved into a rolling pocket after faking to his running backs.

"When I'm playing free safety, I can read the quarterback," Howell said. "He can fake all he wants, but he has to look to get the ball where he wants. And I can see him and make my move."

"I read the pass all the way, and Kilmer more or less threw it right to me. He rolled out to the left and apparently was off balance when he threw it."

Kilmer said Howell saw more than he did on the play. "I was a little off balance but I got hit just as I released it," he said. "I was looking for Jerry Smith and I was trying to get the ball over the line-backer."

"The next thing I knew, I was on the ground and Howell was running it back."

After taking two steps to his left, Howell cut to his right where he picked up a wall of blockers. The former Grambling player sped down the right sidelines 68 yards before Larry Brown knocked him out of bounds on the Washington 26.

"I got some good blocking and I thought I might go all the way," Howell said. "But I was tiring rapidly at the end. I mean I really got tired."

Five plays later, Cleveland quarterback Bill Nelsen drilled a four-yard pass to Chip Glass for the go-ahead touchdown.

"That was the turning point of the game," said Cleveland Coach Nick Skorich. "It put us in a go-ahead position."

Services Held For Golf Great Bobby Jones

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The sports world pays tribute today to Robert Tyre "Bobby" Jones, the golfing great who died Saturday at the age of 69.

Private services were scheduled this afternoon at Oakland Cemetery with the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John D. Stapleton, who baptized Jones as a Catholic three days before he died, officiating.

"It's a great loss to golf," said Doug Sanders. "There never will be anyone to equal his accomplishments."

Billy Casper said, "He had such a good life and accomplished so many things that in passing through adversity he was a great inspiration to all who knew him."

Jones died "peacefully in his sleep," according to doctors who had been treating him for the aneurism that was the immediate cause of death.

He suffered from a painful back disease called spondylomyelia, which ended his golfing career in 1948.

Jones achieved golf's only Grand Slam in 1930, winning the U.S. Open, the U.S. Amateurs, the British Open and British Amateur.

That feat "will live forever in the minds of golfers and sportsmen everywhere," said Arnold Palmer.

Ben Hogan said of Jones, "The man was sick so long and he fought it so successfully that I think we have finally discovered the secret to Jones' success — it was the strength of his mind."

The Augusta National Golf Club in east Georgia had made Jones "president in perpetuity." Jones was principally responsible for establishing the club and its annual Masters Tournament.

Cleveland Cavaliers Have Bad Weekend

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Cavaliers had a disastrous weekend, losing to Boston, New York and Chicago, and center Rick Roberson probably summed up the problem best when he said, "We're not playing together. We're not a team."

The Cavs were in serious contention only while playing Boston Friday night, but blew a 12-point lead and lost the game. They were barely in the running against the Knicks in New York and in their 119-101 loss here Sunday night to the Chicago Bulls.

The Washington Huskies returned five kickoffs for touchdowns last season.

DOESN'T PLAY MUCH — Washington Redskins Sonny Jurgensen, who until he got hurt during the exhibition season this year was the starting quarterback, has been relegated to a backup spot behind Bill Kilmer.

Although Jurgensen is now healthy, it is not expected that he will be able to wrestle the number one spot from Kilmer.

Jurgensen is shown on sidelines as the Redskins bow to the Browns.

Ohio State Comes Alive, Turns Back Butler, 82-70

By GEORGE STRODE — Associated Press Sports Writer

Ohio State's sagging offense, rejuvenated by sophomores at Butler Saturday night, may get another boost tonight.

Allan Hornyak, last year's leading scorer, idled all season with a heel injury, may make his debut against visiting Brown for the tenth-ranked Buckeyes.

Ohio State, with sophomores Dan Gerhardt, Gary Repella and Wardell Jackson in major roles, had its best shooting night of the season, hitting 53.5 per cent in an 82-70 trimming of Butler.

"The sophomore guards really did a good job," said Ohio State Coach Fred Taylor. "I was glad for the victory. I think it will help us."

Taylor was talking about Dan Gerhardt, who matched 7-foot Luke Witte's game high 22 points, and Gary Repella, who swished 10 points in his first varsity start. Jackson also had 10.

In another important encounter tonight, Ohio University shoots for its third straight victory over a Big Ten opponent against Michigan in the Wolverines' tournament.

Only 10 contests, four of them holiday tournament games, are on tonight's Ohio college schedule.

Defending Mid-American Conference champion Miami, struggling with a 2-3 record, may have found itself in a 58-51 triumph at Dayton Saturday night.

"We came closer to playing the game we want to play tonight than we have previously this season," said Redskins mentor Darrell Hedrick.

While Darrel Dunlap was pouring in 20 points, Miami's famed man-to-man defense put the shackles on the Flyers, now 2-4.

Tom Scott tied the game with a basketball at 75-75, then put Bowling Green ahead to stay with another goal in an 87-84 surprise of St. Bonaventure. Dalynn Badenhop pumped in 21 for the 2-3 Falcons.

Toledo, outscored by two more field goals, hit 30 of 37 free throws and swept the rebounding 48-34 to handle Morris Harvey 92-81.

Tom Kozelko, 6-8 center, led Toledo to its fourth victory in five games with 24 points. Morris Harvey's Bob Wesley had a game-high 26 points.

Tom Binegar hit four straight baskets starting the second half to help Xavier pull away from

Orville Moody Wins Morocco Golf Clash

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — A five-week vacation away from the golf course apparently was the tonic Orville Moody needed to revitalize his golf game.

The former Army sergeant led a seven-man American domination of the Morocco International Golf Grand Prix, winning the $50,000 event by two strokes Sunday with a 72-hole total of 291.

Moody, the 1969 U.S. Open champion, had won only one tournament—the Hong Kong Open—until five weeks ago.

Auburn 71-60, Jerry Helmers' 26 points paced the Musketeers, 3-2.

Sixth-ranked Brigham Young pulled out a 82-79 win over Cincinnati after trailing nearly the entire game in the Jayhawk Basketball Tournament at Lawrence, Kan.

Kresimir Cosic put BYU ahead 70-69 with two free throws with 2:42 left to play and the Salt Lake City team held on the rest of the way. The Bearcats' Lloyd Batts led all scorers with 27 points.

Utah State hosted Kent State, and handed the Golden Flashes a 68-61 setback in non-conference competition.

Capital notched its fifth win against no losses at the expense of previously-unbeaten West Liberty State, W. Va., 86-77. Center Mike Stump paced the defending Ohio Conference champs with 27 points.

In a Mid-Ohio Conference clash, Ohio Dominican edged Cedarville 91-90 as Dave Maurer sank a layup with two seconds left to play.

Urbana, unbeaten going into the weekend, suffered its second straight loss by a 109-108 score at the hands of Ferris State, Mich., in the consolation game of the Kiwanis Classic at Spring Arbor, Mich.

typographical error, was all too real for Fighting Irish Coach Dick Phelps.

"Has anybody been beaten like this?" he asked rhetorically. "We've got to regroup and reorganize. We've got to get over it. We have only one way to go now—and that's up. If we score 30 points the next game, well, that's progress."

Coach Bobby Knight of Indiana was almost embarrassed by the outcome. "Nobody likes to beat anybody that badly," he said. "But it got to a position where everything Notre Dame did was wrong."

Notre Dame took a 5-4 advantage in the opening minutes, but the Fighting Irish never saw the lead after that. The Hoosiers had a ridiculous 44-13 halftime bulge and at one time during the lopsided affair, didn't allow Notre Dame to score a point for more than 13 minutes.

"It was an aggressive defense that beat us one-on-one," said Phelps.

Temple Defeats Penn, Wins 57-52

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Watch closely, everyone, Professor Harry Litwack is giving basketball lessons.

You should have seen what the Temple coach taught fifth-ranked Penn Saturday night.

Litwack, master of the zone defense during his two decades at the Philadelphia school, unfurled a tricky twist to help the Owls upset the Quakers 57-52.

"We hoped it would shake them up a bit," said Litwack of his "box-and-one" defense. "Maybe it did."

The setup is a throwback to the classic 3-2 zone, except that four men play the zone this time and leave the fifth to float around and play man-to-man.

In this case, Mike Jones shadowed Penn star Bob Morse and held him to a mere five points, about 15 under his season's average.

"This has to be a real, big win, a hell of an achievement," crowed Litwack after putting an end to Penn's regular-season winning streak of 48 games.

While Temple was confusing Penn in Philadelphia, there was also some confusion in Honolulu, where a technical foul added a bizarre element to basketball.

Ninth-ranked Florida State lost a 30-10 decision to the Hawaii Islanders after nine minutes of play when Seminole Coach Hugh Durham refused to leave the court after a technical foul.

After waiting two minutes for the hot-tempered coach to sit down, the referees awarded the decision to Hawaii on a forfeit.

Elsewhere, second-ranked Marquette ripped Fordham 87-68; third-ranked South Carolina nudged Virginia Tech 77-76 and No. 4 North Carolina won the Big Four Tournament with a 99-68 runaway over North Carolina State.

Brigham Young, No. 6, defeated Cincinnati 82-79 in a consolation game of the Jayhawk Classic. Southern California, tied for 10th with Ohio State, won the tourney with an 87-77 triumph over host Kansas. Seventh-ranked Kentucky whipped Princeton 96-82 to take the Kentucky Invitational. Marshall topped eighth-rated St. John's, N.Y. 110-107 in overtime to win the Marshall Memorial and Ohio State beat Butler 82-70.

The game in Hawaii turned into a real lulu, when a foul was called on Florida State's Otto Petty. He had said something to official David Mahukona, drawing a technical.

Coach Durham roared onto the court and he, too, was slapped with a technical. After placing his hands on the official's chest, he was ejected.

The foul shots were converted by Hawaii, and when Durham didn't leave, the officials called the forfeit.

Arkansas, Tennessee To Clash

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — "Their defense is not just good, it's outstanding," said Coach Frank Broyles of Arkansas on the eve of his Razorbacks' Liberty Bowl confrontation with ninth-ranked Tennessee tonight.

"I don't recall seeing a defense with so much speed all across the board," Broyles said. "They don't stay blocked long."

Tennessee's drive to a 9-2 season that included a smashing 31-11 victory over previously undefeated Penn State was keyed to a big-play defense led by All-America safety Bobby Majors and linebackers Jackie Walker and Ray Nettles, each packing All-Southeastern Conference credentials.

The battle between the rugged Vol defenders and the explosive PORKER attack is slated for a 9 p.m. (EST) kickoff before a sellout crowd of 50,100 in Memorial Stadium and a national television audience (ABC).

Bookmakers have pegged the game as the closest of the post-season struggles, establishing Tennessee as a one-point favorite to extend its winning streak to seven games.

The 18th-ranked Razorbacks, runner-up in the Southwest Conference, will provide Tennessee one of its toughest tests this year.

49ers Beat Lions, 31-27; Join Bowl Teams

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

A year ago, the Detroit Lions kept Los Angeles out of the National Football League playoffs by winning their final regular season game. This time they did it by losing.

The San Francisco 49ers edged the Lions 31-27 Sunday on John Brodie's 10-yard touchdown scramble with 10 minutes to play. That gave the 49ers the National Conference's Western Division crown and relegated the Rams, whose 23-14 triumph over Pittsburgh already was on the scoreboard, to another meaningless second-place finish.

Last season, the Rams beat the Giants in New York on the final day to stay alive, only to have the 49ers defeat Oakland and win the West while the Lions whipped Green Bay for the best second-place record in the NFC and the conference's wild card playoff spot. Elsewhere, the Miami Dolphins trounced Green Bay 27-6 and won the AFC Eastern Division title by one-half game over Baltimore when the Colts bowed to New England 21-17. The Dallas Cowboys won the NFC Eastern crown Saturday by routing St. Louis 31-12.

The Super Bowl playoffs open next Saturday with Dallas at Minnesota and Miami at Kansas City. Sunday finds Baltimore at Cleveland and Washington at San Francisco.

Other results Sunday were Cleveland 20, Washington 13; Kansas City 22, Buffalo 9; Minnesota 27, Chicago 10; Atlanta 24, New Orleans 20; Oakland 21, Denver 13; New York Jets 35, Cincinnati 21; Philadelphia 41, New York Giants 28 and Houston 49, San Diego 33.

Brodie, who earlier threw scoring passes to Dick Witcher, Ken Willard and Gene Washington, pulled San Francisco from behind for the third time with his decisive gallop. He faded to pass, escaped two rushers and scrambled up the middle.

The 49ers took possession of the ball for their winning drive when Frank Nunley and Earl Edward combined to stop Detroit's Greg Landry on fourth down when he tried to sneak for less than a yard at the Lions' 40.

Coach Joe Schmidt of the Lions admitted, "We would have played it differently" had Detroit been in position to make the playoffs. "We were going for the win. That's what we came here to do. I thought we had to play it that way to keep the momentum and maybe get in scoring position again."

The Rams, their backs squarely against the wall, scored the first three times they had the ball against Pittsburgh on a pair of David Ray field goals and Roman Gabriel's 20-yard pass to Jack Snow. But Gabriel said the players virtually had conceded the Western title to San Francisco.

"It was hard for us to play

this game," he said. "I really don't think our team concentrated well at all. We all just thought San Francisco was not going to lose."

Miami, locked in a 6-6 struggle with Green Bay, exploded for three touchdowns within five minutes of the second half and then sat back to await New England's upset of Baltimore. The quick scores came on one-yard runs by Jim Kiick and Larry Csonka and Curtis Johnson's 47-yard spring with a blocked field goal attempt.

Green Bay's John Brockington ran for 73 yards to become the ground-gainingest rookie in NFL history with 1,105 yards.

"I'm sure the Colts played to win," said Miami Coach Don Shula, when asked how he felt about meeting 10-3-1 Kansas City in the opening round of the playoffs while runnerup Baltimore, the AFC's wild-card entry, goes against supposedly weaker 9-5 Cleveland.

Baltimore's Don McCafferty echoed that sentiment after New England's Jim Plunkett fired his second touchdown pass to Randy Vataha, this one an 88-yard bomb, to offset a late score by the Colts. John Outlaw ran 60 yards with an interception for the Patriots' other touchdown.

"You don't like to lose any time," McCafferty said.

Intercepted Pass Decisive; Browns Top Skins, 20-13

WASHINGTON (AP)—The difference Sunday was that while Bill Kilmer had the incentive, Mike Howell had the ball.

The result was a 20-13 Cleveland Browns National Football League victory over the Washington Redskins.

"We wanted that 10th victory," said Kilmer, the Redskins' quarterback. "Coach George Allen said early in spring training that he thought we could win 10 games."

The Redskins looked as if they might up their record when Howell, a veteran safety, went into his act.

Following Don Crockcroft's second field goal of the game, which knotted the score at 13-13, the Skins started one of their best drives of the day.

With Kilmer at the controls, Washington marched from its own 12 and reached the Cleveland 29 in the opening moments of the final quarter. On first and 10, Kilmer moved into a rolling pocket after faking to his running backs.

"When I'm playing free safety, I can read the quarterback," Howell said. "He can fake all he wants, but he has to look to get the ball where he wants. And I can see him and make my move."

"I read the pass all the way, and Kilmer more or less threw it right to me. He rolled out to the left and apparently was off balance when he threw it."

Kilmer said Howell saw more than he did on the play. "I was a little off balance but I got hit just as I released it," he said. "I was looking for Jerry Smith and I was trying to get the ball over the line-backer."

"The next thing I knew, I was on the ground and Howell was running it back."

After taking two steps to his left, Howell cut to his right where he picked up a wall of blockers. The former Grambling player sped down the right sidelines 68 yards before Larry Brown knocked him out of bounds on the Washington 26.

"I got some good blocking and I thought I might go all the way," Howell said. "But I was tiring rapidly at the end. I mean I really got tired."

Five plays later, Cleveland quarterback Bill Nelsen drilled a four-yard pass to Chip Glass for the go-ahead touchdown.

"That was the turning point of the game," said Cleveland Coach Nick Skorich. "It put us in a go-ahead position."

DOESN'T PLAY MUCH — Washington Redskins Sonny Jurgensen, who until he got hurt during the exhibition season this year was the starting quarterback, has been relegated to a backup spot behind Bill Kilmer.

Ohio State Comes Alive, Turns Back Butler, 82-70

By GEORGE STRODE — Associated Press Sports Writer

Ohio State's sagging offense, rejuvenated by sophomores at Butler Saturday night, may get another boost tonight.

Allan Hornyak, last year's leading scorer, idled all season with a heel injury, may make his debut against visiting Brown for the tenth-ranked Buckeyes.

Ohio State, with sophomores Dan Gerhard, Gary Repella and Wardell Jackson in major roles, had its best shooting night of the season, hitting 53.5 per cent in an 82-70 trimming of Butler.

"The sophomore guards really did a good job," said Ohio State Coach Fred Taylor. "I was glad for the victory. I think it will help us."

Taylor was talking about Dan Gerhard, who matched 7-foot Luke Witte's game high 22 points, and Gary Repella, who swished 10 points in his first varsity start. Jackson also had 10.

In another important encounter tonight, Ohio University shoots for its third straight victory over a Big Ten opponent against Michigan in the Wolverines' tournament.

Only 10 contests, four of them holiday tournament games, are on tonight's Ohio college schedule.

Defending Mid-American Conference champion Miami, struggling with a 2-3 record, may have found itself in a 58-51 triumph at Dayton Saturday night.

"We came closer to playing the game we want to play tonight than we have previously this season," said Redskins mentor Darrell Hedric.

While Darrell Dunlap was pouring in 20 points, Miami's famed man-to-man defense put the shackles on the Flyers, now 2-4.

Tom Scott tied the game with a basketball at 75-75, then put Bowling Green ahead to stay with another goal in an 87-84 surprise of St. Bonaventure. Dalynn Badenhop pumped in 21 for the 2-3 Falcons.

Toledo, outscored by two more field goals, hit 30 of 37 free throws and swept the rebounding 43-34 to handle Morris Harvey 92-81.

Tom Kozelko, 6-8 center, led Toledo to its fourth victory in five games with 24 points. Morris Harvey's Bob Wesley had a game-high 26 points.

Orville Moody Wins Morocco Golf Clash

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — A five-week vacation away from the golf course apparently was the tonic Orville Moody needed to revitalize his golf game.

The former Army sergeant led a seven-man American domination of the Morocco International Golf Grand Prix, winning the $50,000 event by two strokes Sunday with a 72-hole total of 291.

Moody, the 1969 U.S. Open champion, had won only one tournament—the Hong Kong Open—until five weeks ago.

Sixth-ranked Brigham Young pulled out a 82-79 win over Cincinnati after trailing nearly the entire game in the Jayhawk Basketball Tournament at Lawrence, Kan.

Utah State hosted Kent State, and handed the Golden Flashes a 68-61 setback in non-conference competition.

Capital notched its fifth win against no losses at the expense of previously-unbeaten West Liberty State, W. Va., 86-77. Center Mike Stump paced the defending Ohio Conference champs with 27 points.

In a Mid-Ohio Conference clash, Ohio Dominican edged Cedarville 91-90 as Dave Maurer sank a layup with two seconds left to play.

Services Held For Golf Great Bobby Jones

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The sports world pays tribute today to Robert Tyre "Bobby" Jones, the golfing great who died Saturday at the age of 69.

Private services were scheduled this afternoon at Oakland Cemetery with the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John D. Stapleton, who baptized Jones as a Catholic three days before he died, officiating.

"It's a great loss to golf," said Doug Sanders. "There never will be anyone to equal his accomplishments."

Billy Casper said, "He had such a good life and accomplished so many things that in passing through adversity he was a great inspiration to all who knew him."

Jones died "peacefully in his sleep," according to doctors who had been treating him for the aneurism that was the immediate cause of death.

He suffered from a painful back disease called spondylomyelia, which ended his golfing career in 1948.

Jones achieved golf's only Grand Slam in 1930, winning the U.S. Open, the U.S. Amateurs, the British Open and British Amateur.

That feat "will live forever in the minds of golfers and sportsmen everywhere," said Arnold Palmer.

Ben Hogan said of Jones, "The man was sick so long and he fought it so successfully that I think we have finally discovered the secret to Jones' success — it was the strength of his mind."

The Augusta National Golf Club in east Georgia had made Jones "president in perpetuity." Jones was principally responsible for establishing the club and its annual Masters Tournament.

Cleveland Cavaliers Have Bad Weekend

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Cavaliers had a disastrous weekend, losing to Boston, New York and Chicago, and center Rick Roberson probably summed up the problem best when he said, "We're not playing together. We're not a team."

The Cavs were in serious contention only while playing Boston Friday night, but blew a 12-point lead and lost the game. They were barely in the running against the Knicks in New York and in their 119-101 loss here Sunday night to the Chicago Bulls.

The Washington Huskies returned five kickoffs for touchdowns last season.

Temple Defeats Penn, Wins 57-52

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Watch closely, everyone, Professor Harry Litwack is giving basketball lessons.

You should have seen what the Temple coach taught fifth-ranked Penn Saturday night.

Litwack, master of the zone defense during his two decades at the Philadelphia school, unfurled a tricky twist to help the Owls upset the Quakers 57-52.

"We hoped it would shake them up a bit," said Litwack of his "box-and-one" defense. "Maybe it did."

The setup is a throwback to the classic 3-2 zone, except that four men play the zone this time and leave the fifth to float around and play man-to-man.

In this case, Mike Jones shadowed Penn star Bob Morse and held him to a mere five points, about 15 under his season's average.

"This has to be a real, big win, a hell of an achievement," crowed Litwack after putting an end to Penn's regular-season winning streak of 48 games.

While Temple was confusing Penn in Philadelphia, there was also some confusion in Honolulu, where a technical foul added a bizarre element to basketball.

Ninth-ranked Florida State lost a 30-10 decision to the Hawaii Islanders after nine minutes of play when Seminole Coach Hugh Durham refused to leave the court after a technical foul.

After waiting two minutes for the hot-tempered coach to sit down, the referees awarded the decision to Hawaii on a forfeit.

Elsewhere, second-ranked Marquette ripped Fordham 87-68; third-rated South Carolina nudged Virginia Tech 77-76 and No. 4 North Carolina won the Big Four Tournament with a 99-68 runaway over North Carolina State.

Brigham Young, No. 6, defeated Cincinnati 82-79 in a consolation game of the Jayhawk Classic. Southern California, tied for 10th with Ohio State, won the tourney with an 87-77 triumph over host Kansas. Seventh-ranked Kentucky whipped Princeton 96-82 to take the Kentucky Invitational, Marshall topped eighth-rated St. John's, N.Y. 110-107 in overtime to win the Marshall Memorial and Ohio State beat Butler 82-70.

The game in Hawaii turned into a real lulu, when a foul was called on Florida State's Otto Petty. He had said something to official David Mahukona, drawing a technical.

Coach Durham roared onto the court and he, too, was slapped with a technical. After placing his hands on the official's chest, he was ejected.

The foul shots were converted by Hawaii, and when Durham didn't leave, the officials called the forfeit.

In other action involving ranked teams, 12th-rated Indiana annihilated Notre Dame 94-29 and No. 14 Jacksonville stopped William & Mary 83-72.

The Indiana-Notre Dame score, despite appearances of a typographical error, was all too real for Fighting Irish Coach Dick Phelps.

"Has anybody been beaten like this?" he asked rhetorically. "We've got to regroup and reorganize. We've got to get over it. We have only one way to go now—and that's up. If we score 30 points the next game, well, that's progress."

Coach Bobby Knight of Indiana was almost embarrassed by the outcome. "Nobody likes to beat anybody that badly," he said. "But it got to a position where everything Notre Dame did was wrong."

Notre Dame took a 5-4 advantage in the opening minutes, but the Fighting Irish never saw the lead after that. The Hoosiers had a ridiculous 44-13 halftime bulge and at one time during the lopsided affair, didn't allow Notre Dame to score a point for more than 13 minutes.

"It was an aggressive defense that beat us one-on-one," said Phelps.

"If the right thing comes along," Namath explained Sunday after the Jets' season ended. "I want to do the right thing. Like, if I would strike oil and make $42 million I don't think I'd come back."

Chicago Black Hawks
Top St. Louis, 2-0
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Goalteer Gary Smith, a nemesis to Chicago in recent National Hockey League seasons, now is proving to be just as tough against the Black Hawks' rivals.

The 6-foot-4 Smith, one of the tallest players in the league, was acquired last September by Chicago in a trade with California and has been sharing the Chicago goaltending with Tony Esposito.

In 15 games, he has yielded only 24 goals for a remarkable 1.60 goals against average, and has fashioned three shutouts, including a 2-0 triumph over St. Louis Sunday night.

Apollo 16 Tektite Test Is Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Apollo 16 astronauts plan to carry to the moon next March tiny slices of tektites for tests to determine whether those strange glass objects are of lunar origin, as some scientists believe.

The tektite sections will be among samples of glass, plastic and various minerals in a four-panel, 48-inch-long array of cosmic ray detectors to be exposed on the moon's surface when astronauts John W. Young and Charles M. Duke land there March 21.

The detectors will be retrieved shortly before lift-off from the moon March 24 and will be returned to earth for laboratory examination.

Tektites are pear-shaped or button-like bits of glass that appear to have been found in a few localities in Bohemia, Australia, Tasmania and Billiton island in the East Indies.

"The origin of tektites is unknown," the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Saturday.

"By subjecting the tektite samples to cosmic rays, calibration data may enable scientists to determine whether tektites experienced a cosmic ray implying an origin on earth or exposure of seconds to minutes, implying an origin on earth or a few days, implying an origin on the moon."

Cosmic rays are atomic nuclei that travel through space at almost the speed of light. They bombard the earth's atmosphere continuously, but the earth's atmosphere and its blanket of air combine to absorb most of the potentially harmful particles before they reach the ground.

Lima Man Wounded By Police

LIMA, Ohio (AP)—Clifford Watson, 31, of Lima remains in serious condition in a local hospital here today after having been shot by police Sunday as he tried to avoid arrest.

Authorities said Watson is wanted in Ft. Wayne, Ind., on charges of armed robbery and second degree burglary.

Watson was wounded twice, police say, following a high speed auto chase that led first through the city, then onto Interstate 175, then back through the city again. Cruisers from the Lima Police Department, the Allen County Sheriff's Department and the Ohio Highway Patrol were at one time or another in pursuit of the Watson auto.

Police said when efforts to elude police by car failed, Watson abandoned his auto, containing his girl friend's three children, and fled into a wooded area on foot. It was then that he was wounded—once slightly in the ear; and a second time in the side.

The children were returned to their mother unharmed.

Watson is under heavy guard at the hospital.

New Satellite Joins Others

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A new international communications satellite whizzed around the earth on a great elliptical path today as a ground station prepared to send a signal to lock it in a stationary orbit above the Atlantic Ocean.

The second in a series of Intelsat 4 satellites was launched from Cape Kennedy by an Atlas-Centaur rocket Sunday night and achieved a preliminary orbit ranging from about 350 to 22,300 miles high.

Later today, a ground station at Andover, Maine, sends a radio signal to fire a small on-board motor to kick the 3,094-pound payload into stationary orbit 22,300 miles above the equator.

There, it will join the first Intelsat 4 launched last January. They will serve as switchboards to relay telephone, television and other commercial communications signals between North and South America and Western Europe.

Each Intelsat 4 is capable of handling 6,000 simultaneous telephone calls or 12 color TV programs. A total of eight Intelsat 4 satellites are to be launched to form a global network to replace the Intelsat 3 payloads, which can handle only 1,200 phone circuits or four TV programs.

Claim Gilligan Will Endorse Muskie Candidacy

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Published reports that Gov. John Gilligan would endorse U.S. Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972 have neither been affirmed nor denied by administration spokesmen.

Robert Tenenbaum, Gilligan's press secretary, conceded Sunday "it is entirely possible the governor will announce his position sometime this week," but declined to elaborate.

An article in today's editions of the New York Times quotes Democratic sources in Ohio as saying the first-term governor would endorse Muskie here early this week.

Muskie, vice presidential nominee in 1968, is the current frontrunner for the party's 1972 nomination to head the ticket.

Apollo 16 Tektite Test Is Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Apollo 16 astronauts plan to carry to the moon next March tiny slices of tektites for tests to determine whether those strange glass objects are of lunar origin, as some scientists believe.

The tektite sections will be among samples of glass, plastic and various minerals in a four-panel, 48-inch-long array of cosmic ray detectors to be exposed on the moon's surface when astronauts John W. Young and Charles M. Duke land there March 21.

The detectors will be retrieved shortly before lift-off from the moon March 24 and will be returned to earth for laboratory examination.

Tektites are pear-shaped or button-like bits of glass that appear to have been found in a few localities in Bohemia, Australia, Tasmania and Billiton island in the East Indies.

"The origin of tektites is unknown," the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Saturday.

"By subjecting the tektite samples to cosmic rays, calibration data may enable scientists to determine whether tektites experienced a cosmic ray implying an origin on earth or exposure of seconds to minutes, implying an origin on earth or a few days, implying an origin on the moon."

Cosmic rays are atomic nuclei that travel through space at almost the speed of light. They bombard the earth's atmosphere continuously, but the earth's atmosphere and its blanket of air combine to absorb most of the potentially harmful particles before they reach the ground.

Nixon Signs Money Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says three appropriations bills and the Alaskan Native Claims Settlement Act, passed by Congress before it adjourned Friday, have been signed by President Nixon.

The money bills include $70.5 billion for the Defense Department in 1972; $166 million in federal funds for the current District of Columbia budget; and a measure continuing the present level of spending for foreign aid, the Peace Corps and various other agencies.

The Alaskan claims bill provides 40 million acres and $902.5 million in settlement for the loss of land once held by Eskimos, Aleuts and other native Alaskans.

Still awaiting White House action is the Phase 2 economic measure extending to April 30, 1973, the president's authority to control wages, prices, rents and other phases of the nation's economy.

The measure contains provisions for a federal pay raise to go into effect earlier than Nixon wishes, and for retroactive pay raises that he wanted to leave to the Pay Board. However, he is not expected to veto the legislation on those accounts.

Robert Tenenbaum, Gilligan's press secretary, conceded Sunday "it is entirely possible the governor will announce his position sometime this week," but declined to elaborate.

An article in today's editions of the New York Times quotes Democratic sources in Ohio as saying the first-term governor would endorse Muskie here early this week.

Muskie, vice presidential nominee in 1968, is the current frontrunner for the party's 1972 nomination to head the ticket.

Lima Man Wounded By Police

LIMA, Ohio (AP)—Clifford Watson, 31, of Lima remains in serious condition in a local hospital here today after having been shot by police Sunday as he tried to avoid arrest.

Authorities said Watson is wanted in Ft. Wayne, Ind., on charges of armed robbery and second degree burglary.

Watson was wounded twice, police say, following a high speed auto chase that led first through the city, then onto Interstate 175, then back through the city again. Cruisers from the Lima Police Department, the Allen County Sheriff's Department and the Ohio Highway Patrol were at one time or another in pursuit of the Watson auto.

Police said when efforts to elude police by car failed, Watson abandoned his auto, containing his girl friend's three children, and fled into a wooded area on foot. It was then that he was wounded—once slightly in the ear; and a second time in the side.

The children were returned to their mother unharmed.

Watson is under heavy guard at the hospital.

New Satellite Joins Others

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A new international communications satellite whizzed around the earth on a great elliptical path today as a ground station prepared to send a signal to lock it in a stationary orbit above the Atlantic Ocean.

The second in a series of Intelsat 4 satellites was launched from Cape Kennedy by an Atlas-Centaur rocket Sunday night and achieved a preliminary orbit ranging from about 350 to 22,300 miles high.

Later today, a ground station at Andover, Maine, sends a radio signal to fire a small on-board motor to kick the 3,094-pound payload into stationary orbit 22,300 miles above the equator.

There, it will join the first Intelsat 4 launched last January. They will serve as switchboards to relay telephone, television and other commercial communications signals between North and South America and Western Europe.

Each Intelsat 4 is capable of handling 6,000 simultaneous telephone calls or 12 color TV programs. A total of eight Intelsat 4 satellites are to be launched to form a global network to replace the Intelsat 3 payloads, which can handle only 1,200 phone circuits or four TV programs.

Claim Gilligan Will Endorse Muskie Candidacy

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Published reports that Gov. John Gilligan would endorse U.S. Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972 have neither been affirmed nor denied by administration spokesmen.

Robert Tenenbaum, Gilligan's press secretary, conceded Sunday "it is entirely possible the governor will announce his position sometime this week," but declined to elaborate.

An article in today's editions of the New York Times quotes Democratic sources in Ohio as saying the first-term governor would endorse Muskie here early this week.

Muskie, vice presidential nominee in 1968, is the current frontrunner for the party's 1972 nomination to head the ticket.
